JUDGE FIELD'S ARREST.

Released by Justice Sawyer on a Writ of Habeas Corpus

IN FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS BONDS

Funeral of Terry at Stockton—Sepulture Denied by the Catholic Church—The Excitement in San Francisco Unabated

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Justice Stephen J. Field, of the United States supreme court, was arrested here to-day on a charge of being a party to the killing of David S. Terry at Lathrop last Wednesday morning. Application was made at once for a writ of habeas corpus, and the matter was heard by Judge Sawyer of the United States circuit court, who granted the writ and released Justice Field on $5,000 bail.

The warrant for Justice Field's arrest was issued by a justice of the peace in Stockton on complaint of Mrs. Sarah Althea Terry. Sheriff Cunningham of Stockton arrived here with the warrant last night and he applied to Judge Rix of the police court this morning to indorse it.

Judge Rix took the matter under advisement and asked the advice of District Attorney Page. The latter expressed the opinion that the warrant should be indorsed if it was issued in regular form, and that the judge should not consider the individuality of the person against whom it was directed.

The counsel who appeared for Justice Field urged the court to take testimony to ascertain if the warrant should have been issued. He declared that the issuance of the warrant was nothing more than an attempt to humiliate a justice of the United States supreme court.

Judge Rix finally indorsed the warrant and placed it in the hands of Sheriff Cunningham, who went at once to the United States appraiser's building, where Justice Field's chambers are located. Justice Field arrived at his chambers about noon and, with Judge Brewer of Kansas and Judge Sawyer, awaited the arrival of the sheriff.

Sheriff Cunningham went first to the marshal's office, and then, accompanied by Chief of Police Crowley, Captain Lees and United States Marshal Franks, proceeded to Justice Field's chambers. Justice Field rose to receive the party, and Sheriff Cunningham presented the warrant and formally made the arrest. Application was made at once for a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Sawyer granted the writ and retired to the circuit court room. Justice Field and Sheriff Cunningham then entered the courtroom and took seats in the jury box.

District Attorney Carey announced that Sheriff Cunningham had obeyed the writ of habeas corpus and produced the prisoner, and that he now awaited the further pleasure of the court.

Judge Sawyer set the case for a hearing on next Thursday morning and ordered Justice Field's release, fixing the bail at $5000.

The petition for the writ of habeas corpus was made by Judge Field himself and is a very lengthy document. It sets forth in detail the facts of the case already known, and declares that at the breakfast table at Lathrop Justice Field was maliciously and wickedly assaulted from behind without any forewarning by David S. Terry, which assault was not provoked by any act, word or deed of the petitioner.

The details of the contempt proceedings of September last, when Mrs. Terry caused a sensational scene in the circuit courtroom, are then set forth, and it is declared that at the time of the commission of said attempt by Terry and his wife [illegible] and at sundry times since, the petitioner is informed and believes that said Terry and his wife have respectively threatened that at the first opportunity they would insult, assault and kill the petitioner for and on account of the acts done in the discharge of the duties devolving upon him as associate justice of the United States supreme court, and that said Terry repeatedly and frequently declared and threatened that he would get even with the petitioner.

The petitioner next sets forth that at the time of the shooting Justice Field was accompanied by David Nagle, deputy United States marshal, who was acting under [illegible] of the attorney-general of the United States and Marshal Franks.

The petitioner declares that he in no way or manner defended or protected himself, that he was in no way responsible for any directions given Nagel or any other person, and that he was merely present at the place of shooting while en route from Los Angeles to San Francisco in the discharge of his official duty.

He further declares that he was not then, nor has he been at any time for many years, armed with any weapon whatever, nor has he used any weapon whatever. The petitioner further alleges that Sarah Althea Terry falsely and maliciously swore out the warrant of arrest.

Justice Field also sets forth in his petition that he is now holding court in this city, and that his arrest and removal would seriously interfere with the discharge of his official duties, such interference being contrary to the provisions of the constitution.

Justice Field further asserts that in the United States circuit court, during the hearing of the Sharon case, it was proved and held that the complainant, Sarah Althea Terry, was an abandoned woman and without veracity.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Refusal to Adjourn as a Mark of Respect to Terry's Memory

Application was made by Attorney Crittenden to the supreme court to adjourn to-day as a mark of respect to the memory of Judge Terry.

Chief Justice Beatty declined to entertain the motion in the following language, after remarking that he was sorry the motion had been urged:

It is a very unfortunate affair, but the court has fully considered the same and deems it the wisest mode of treating the subject to keep silence. The sudden death of David S. Terry is notorious, and it is the decision of this court that it take no further action in the matter.

HE HAS ONE ADMIRER.

STOCKTON, Cal., Aug. 16.—Judge Budd this morning adjourned the superior court out of respect to the memory of David S. Terry. He said that those who knew Judge Terry best knew him as a pure judge and an able attorney.

THE FUNERAL AT STOCKTON.

A Great Number of People View the Body—Sarah Althea Much Affected

STOCKTON, Aug. 16.—Judge Terry's body was removed from the morgue to St. John's Episcopal church at noon, where it lay in state for two hours and was viewed by a great number of people. Mrs. Terry sat in a pew near the casket and gazed intently at the dead all the while, and several times she left her seat and threw herself upon the casket.

The rector of the church is ill, and an effort was made to get the Episcopal clergyman at Sacramento to officiate, but he was away from home, and M. E. Derrance, one of the oldest vestrymen in the church here, was finally selected to read the service, which commenced about 2 o'clock.

The body was interred in the cemetery in town. There was some little delay at the grave, the heavy casket being difficult of handling. The Episcopal service was read and the usual prayer offered. Mrs. Terry uttered several exclamations, but after the prayer she was led to her carriage by friends and driven to the Yosemite hotel here, where she retired to her room. The friends of Judge Terry remained at the grave until a neat mound covered the remains.

TERRY WAS NOT A CATHOLIC.

So the Rites of Sepulture Were Denied by the Church

STOCKTON, Cal., Aug. 16.—It is stated that Mrs. Sarah Althea Terry endeavored to have her husband buried by the Roman Catholics, but was refused the rites of the church. Terry and Sarah Althea were married in 1886 by a Catholic priest, and it has always been supposed that he was a Roman Catholic.

Father Wash Caren of St. Mary's church was seen to-day and questioned on the subject. He admitted having seen Mrs. Terry, but was uncommunicative as to what took place.

"Mrs. Terry," he said, "knew perfectly well that Judge Terry was not and never had been a Catholic. If she understands the spirit of the Catholic religion she would know full well that it would have been totally impossible for her husband to have been buried under the auspices of the church."

"Is Mrs. Terry what is called a good Catholic, or is she, as people assert, merely an alleged Catholic?" was asked.

"I am sure I cannot tell you. Mrs. Terry did send for me, but all I know is that the judge could not be buried by our church."

A DECISION AGAINST HER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—In July the supreme court of California reversed the decision of the superior court in the Sharon-Hill-Terry divorce case and remanded the case for a new trial. Mrs. Terry applied for a rehearing before the supreme court, to have the order for a new trial set aside. The supreme court to-day refused her application.

THE TRIBUNE'S OPINION.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Tribune in an editorial says: "The killing of the ruffian and murderer Terry by a United States deputy marshal while in the act of assaulting Justice Field, makes a curious legal situation. It cannot be claimed that Nagle shot Terry in self-defense. It may not be practicable to afford better protection to the lives of judges, and happily these cases are rare, but, if so, this is one of those instances in which public sentiment can properly make itself felt upon the side of natural justice, without too much regard to the letter of the law. It is safe to say that Deputy Marshal Nagle has not much to fear from a California jury."

TURF EVENTS.

Races at Rochester, Saratoga and Brighton Beach.

THE FALL RACES AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The National Jockey Club has completed preparations for their annual fall meeting, which will begin in October and last five days. There will be five races each day, and, except in steeplechases, no purse will be for less than $600.

A NEW PAPAL SCHEME.

Leo XIII Wishes the Western Powers to Buy Up Jerusalem to Enhance His Prestige

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Cardinal Lavigerie, it is understood, will shortly appeal, in the name of the holy father, Leo XIII, to the nations of Europe to purchase from the infidel defilers the holy city of Jerusalem, and as much of its surroundings as will be necessary to form a small province to be forever independent and to guarantee its integrity.

If successful, this victory for the cause of civilization, it is considered by the cardinal and Pope Leo, would be the greatest triumph ever achieved by the Catholic church, and would endear it to the affections of many now alienated from its teachings and prestige, and would do much toward creating a general desire for the restoration of its temporal power.

A HIGH CATHOLIC TRIBUNAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—The appointment of a high ecclesiastical tribunal by the pope for the Roman Catholic church in the United States is believed to have already been consummated, although inquiry has failed to develop the existence of an official notification.

MRS. MAYBRICK'S CASE.

Home Secretary Matthews Will Recommend a Commutation of the Sentence

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Press Association states that Home Secretary Matthews will recommend to the queen the commutation of the death sentence of Mrs. Maybrick to penal servitude for life, and that the commutation of the sentence will be announced after the queen has given her formal assent.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Lancet, after a thorough review of the medical testimony in the trial of Mrs. Maybrick, says: "We can have no desire that the Royal prerogative of mercy should not be exercised in this case, but as a duty to the living relatives of the deceased, to the painstaking, fearless and honest jury, and to one of the greatest ornaments of the English bench, we solemnly assert as our unbiased opinion that the verdict arrived at in Mrs. Maybrick's trial was warranted by the evidence."

THE GUBERNATORIAL CONTEST.

No Frauds Yet Discovered by the Investigating Committee

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 16.—The special committee of the legislature which has been in session for four months examining the depositions in the gubernatorial contest will to-morrow complete the reading of the evidence from all the counties except two, Mercer and McDowell.

The investigation so far has developed one important fact, and that is that the election in this state, all reports to the contrary, was a singularly fair one. No genuine frauds have been discovered, and out of several hundred votes attacked as illegal a very small proportion, scarcely one-tenth, have been thrown out, and these only upon technical grounds.

AMERICAN WHEAT PROSPECTS

The Short Crops in Europe and India Will Give Us the Control of the Market

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The reports received here this morning by the superintendent of agriculture show highly encouraging prospects for American wheat this year. India will produce 6,500,000 tons of wheat, which is 35,000,000 bushels less than last year, the crop of which latter year was 25,000,000 bushels less than that of the previous years. This gives India little more than sufficient for her own consumption. The crop of Russia is 15 per cent. short, and Austro-Hungary has a crop 25 per cent. short of last year's crop. The United States will have 100,000,000 bushels for export.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC

The Issuance of $160,000,000 of Bonds Looked Upon With Disfavor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Commercial Advertiser says in a financial article: "The adjournment of the Northern Pacific directors to next Wednesday was not unexpected. The problems are of such a nature that it will take time properly to consider them. The prospect of a spirited contest over the control of the road at the next election causes the preferred stock to be held at considerable strength. There is a growing feeling that the issuance of bonds to the amount of $40,000,000 more than the present indebtedness of the road will be a hazardous undertaking."

HEAVILY FINED.

Two Contractors Plead Guilty to the Importation of Foreign Labor

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 16.—In the United States court this morning Gus Wilkes and Abner Taylor pleaded guilty to the importation of skilled laborers from Europe to work on the new capitol, and were fined $1000 and costs in each of sixty-four cases.

Mining Troubles Ended

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The Northern Illinois mining troubles have come to a settlement after a long discussion. To-night the mine finally offered to make a reduction of 7½ cents instead of 10 cents. Congressman Sawyer and other non-delegates were made to retire from the wage workers' conference on the ground of being agitators who were preventing a settlement. After midnight the miners' committee agreed to the figures proposed on condition of an advance of 2½ cents in October.

The Tithes Bill.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The discussion of the tithes bill was continued to-day in the commons. Sir William Vernon Harcourt appealed to the speaker to say whether, when amendments inserted practically constituted a new bill, it was not the practice to withdraw the measure and introduce a new bill if necessary. The speaker ruled that the bill so transformed should be withdrawn. It was accordingly withdrawn.

A Manifesto by Boulanger et al.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A manifesto, signed by General Boulanger, Count Dillon and Henri Rochefort, is published. It calls the action of the senate court the acme of arbitrary rule, calumny and mendacity, and declares that in spite of the fresh coup d'etat preparing in the dark the signers have continued confidence in the electorate of France.

Not the Body of the Aeronaut.

BABYLON, L. I., Aug. 16.—The body of the man which was found on Fire Island beach two weeks ago, and which was supposed to be that of Professor Hogan, the missing aeronaut, and was subsequently buried in the cemetery of this village, has been identified as that of Henry Warden, of Chicago, who committed suicide.

No pill or nauseating potion, but a pleasant tonic and purgative is Simmons Liver Regulator.

THE DAY AT OLYMPIA.

Cities Must Be Incorporated by General Law.

THE LAND QUESTION DEBATE

Some Good Speeches Were Made, but Mostly to Empty Chairs—The Delegates Weary of Their Own Eloquence.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Aug. 16.—The convention met at 9, the president in the chair.

Prayer by Rev. Chaplin, of Olympia.

At roll call there were twenty vacant seats.

The records were read and approved.

A petition of M. V. L. West and others for woman suffrage was submitted by the president and tabled.

Minor, from the revision committee, called attention to the fact that the article on corporations provided that cities should never be chartered by special law, and said it was the judgment of the committee that to leave it to stand in that way would practically nullify the section and prevent the incorporation of future cities. He suggested such changes as would allow the legislature to grant mere incorporation by special act, in order that boundaries may be defined, and leave the rest to general law.

Griffitts did not think the deliberate conclusions of the convention should be so interfered with. If allowed, it would result in interminable trouble. He foresaw this a day or two ago, and so stated when he voted against the first suggestion of this same committee.

Minor asked how he would describe the boundaries of a new city by general law.

Griffitts said that there was no trouble about that at all. Nearly every constitution in the country had such a general law, and anyhow, wise or not, the convention had done it deliberately, and it ought not to be undone.

Stiles said this was a special case and ought to be attended to, no matter how it was got at. No two towns are in the same place or similarly situated. A general act is simply impossible for the purpose of incorporation.

Griffitts said it had been done repeatedly nevertheless in this territory. The town can be allowed to define its own boundaries.

Stiles—Who are the inhabitants who declare?

Griffitts—The inhabitants of the district within the boundaries of which the new city is declared to exist. There are other ways also, but this is all so irregular that he didn't propose to go into it.

Browne thought that this change would result in occupying about one-half of the sixty days' session allowed to the legislature with petitions for charters. It is unfortunate that such a limit has been fixed, but we have fixed it so, and ought not to so overload the legislature.

Sullivan of Tacoma raised the point that under the rules the committee on revision was exceeding its power in this recommendation. The chair said that probably the point was technically well taken, and if insisted upon he should so rule, but he believed the revision committee merely wanted to have the sense of the commission on whether there was not here a palpable error that would nullify the law.

Sullivan insisted on his point.

The chair said that before ruling he wanted to go on record with a protest against letting this article go as it stands, because in his opinion as a lawyer it would render it impossible for the legislature to incorporate any city.

Browne did not concur, and thought by reconsidering in the regular way this matter could be brought up for discussion.

The chair said it had passed the reconsideration state.

T. M. Reed thought the revision committee was already in order in expressing its opinion that this form of words was a nullity.

Gowey agreed, and argued that the wording of the rule was sufficiently broad to cover the action of this committee.

The chair thought not, and ruled that unless the rules were suspended the committee's suggestion could not be entertained.

Gowey moved that the rules be suspended for this purpose, but the necessary two-thirds would not consent to it.

[illegible] presented a bill of John F. Carrere for $[illegible] for telegrams to the Dakota and Montana conventions, but withheld it until the chair could audit a few more telegraph bills.

Jones, [illegible], Weisenburger and T. M. Reed successively asked to join the president in his protest against the article on corporations, on account of the action thereon of the convention this morning.

[illegible] gave notice that there would be a meeting of the committee on county and city organization immediately after recess.

THE STATE LANDS.

Adoption of an Amendment on Improvements on School Lands

Dyer moved to go into committee of the whole for further consideration of the state lands article; refused, yeas 21, nays 23.

Gowey said it seemed to him folly for this convention that it can not remedy a plain error when it finds one, and so he gave notice that he should move to amend the rules to allow the revision committee to make suggestions in future.

Crowley asked why the state lands article could not be taken up.

The chair said because it was yet in committee of the whole, which had leave to sit again, whereupon Crowley moved to reconsider the vote refusing to go into committee, and it was reconsidered, and immediately the convention voted to go into committee of the whole on that subject.

Dyer resumed the chair.

The same old original section 3 (which has twice before been up and been twice superseded, so that now it is section 5) was taken up.

Bowen moved to amend so as to protect the rights of those who had made valuable improvements on school lands in good faith when these lands come to be sold at auction.

Comegys opposed. Under the act of congress it is impossible to make any exceptions. These lands are simply to be sold and the money turned into the school fund. If these parties are to get anything it must come directly out of the tax payers' pockets.

Browne wished to amend by excluding only such improvements as were made previous to February 1883.

Accepted by Bowen as a substitute for his amendment.

Cosgrove said that after a sale of such lands he wanted to know how the owner could take off his improvements, which were a part of the realty.

Dunbar did not see any difficulty. The purchaser only got what the state sold him, and the improvements would stay right where they were. It is a good amendment, and he hoped it would be adopted.

Browne's substitute was then adopted.

UNIVERSITY LANDS

The Subject Left to the Legislature for Action.

Crowley offered again his proviso of yesterday, confirming title to university lands where the price has been paid in good faith.

Turner said one step in confirmation of titles had been taken yesterday, and he hoped the convention wouldn't go any further. He didn't believe the members knew enough about these lands to act intelligently.

Sharpstein said the territory had sold university lands and invested the proceeds in the university at Seattle, which had been reported by at least one legislative commission as being mismanaged and its funds squandered. But the parties who bought these lands and paid their money were in no way responsible for any such misappropriation. If the state wanted to get it back, let it go after the men who misappropriated it, one at least of whom still lives at Seattle. The university land at Seattle is worth at least a quarter of a million dollars. The people who paid their money honestly more than twenty years ago under authority of a territorial statute should be protected, even if the statute was not legally enacted.

Moore again protested, as he did yesterday, against turning this convention into a court of chancery to settle land titles, but he supposed the members would not strain at a gnat after swallowing a camel, and so the action of yesterday would probably be repeated. But at least he wished that people who knew about these cases could be brought in to give the convention some information upon which to act. In a sort of emotional insanity yesterday we had done something about the old settler which we should probably seriously regret, but we ought not to go any further without an examination.

Sharpstein asked whether the article as it stood did not cut off any equitable claim from being allowed by the legislature hereafter.

Moore thought not, but Sharpstein thought it did, and Moore declared that he did not swallow any of the camel yesterday and he did not propose to take any of it to-day.

Powers offered an amendment, but it was ruled out of order at this stage of the proceedings.

Gowey claimed that his amendment pending at adjournment yesterday, and which requires thirty days' newspaper notice of such auction sales of school lands, was in order.

The records were looked at and Gowey was found to be correct, so Crowley's proposition stands in the nature of an amendment to Gowey's amendment.

Stiles, F. H. Sullivan, Browne and Warner opposed Crowley's proposition, and Eldridge, Hoyt and Sharpstein favored it.

Sharpstein offered a substitute leaving all this school and university land business to the legislature and authorizing it to confirm these sales, and Crowley accepted this as a substitute for his proposition.

Turner and Stiles opposed this substitute, and Sharpstein and Crowley favored it. Division resulted in its adoption by ayes 27, noes 21.

A SUBSTITUTE BY PROSSER.

Providing a Detailed Plan for the Management of School Lands.

Prosser offered a substitute for the entire section, but withheld it, at the chair's request, to allow Gowey's amendment to be considered

Moore moved and Gowey accepted, that thirty days be changed to sixty days

Stiles hoped these details would be left to the legislature, and so did Dunbar

The amendment was lost.

Prosser then renewed his substitute providing in detail a plan for future management of school lands.

Dunbar said all this had been involved once and so was not in order

The chair differed

Prosser argued in favor of giving grave attention to this most important subject. More than 10,000,000 children of the United States were now being educated in public schools.

Jamison raised the point of order that this was in conflict with section 18 of the enabling act.

The chair differed.

Prosser proceeded with details of school funds and land grants in various states showing how other states had suffered their school land grants to be misappropriated or lost or so had failed to realize proper benefits therefrom and contrasting with this the experience of some states which properly handled their lands From these facts and figures he deduced this result "That if the state of Illinois had prohibited its legislature from squandering its school lands, it would now have an income of $10,000,000 annually instead of having to levy a tax of more than $1,000,000 annually for school purposes

Pending his remarks he gave way to Dunbar to move that the committee rise and report progress This being done, the president resumed the chair Dyer reported, and leave to sit again was granted, whereupon Dunbar moved recess to 2 o clock and that motion prevailing what few members there were sitting around (forty one chairs were vacant when the motion was put) went off to luncheon

PROSSER CONTINUES HIS SPEECH.

An Able and Patriotic Plea for the Children of the Future State

In the afternoon the convention met at 2 the president in the chair and forty nice new chairs were wanting occupants when the gavel fell

Dunbar moved to go into committee of the whole again on the state lands article, so voted

Dyer resumed the chair

Prosser continued his argument in favor of retaining school lands in control of the state quoting further from reports of Illinois methods in selling its school lands at tremendous sacrifice. Wisconsin and Michigan's experiences were next narrated, and shown to be similar to those of Ohio Indiana and Illinois in the matter of selling for the benefit of purchasers rather than the benefit of the state Both of those states ought to have not less than $50,000,000 each in their school funds, whereas Michigan has only $3 261 963 and Wisconsin only $1 165 041 The land was sold on the principle of swapping a horse for a mule, and then selling the mule back for a shilling Another source of loss has been bad investment of the funds received, or outright stealing and still another has been the indifference of the people and the ease with which legislatures have been induced to make changes in the laws and management of school funds, always to the benefit of speculators, and never for the benefit of the state. Among the more recent examples is the state of California one of the most progressive of states inhabited by a noble and generous people, and yet it is a striking case where robbery and mismanagement has resulted in enormous loss to school funds Its land grant was 6 710 324 acres, and the legislature fixed the value of these lands at $1 25 per acre, when some of it is worth $500 per acre. Within the last eight years 4,666,276 acres have been applied for and by the laws of California these lands must be sold at $1 25 per acre instead of from $100 to $500 which is their actual value. This is the statute of 1871-72. In 1884 California's school fund was less than $2 000,000, and speculators have absorbed all the best lands and it can be proved beyond a doubt that the California school fund has been actually robbed of over $100,000 000, one of the most stupendous robberies of the world, by the acts of this legislature It is almost inconceivable, but can be demonstrated to be true. The constitutional convention of 1878 was in session for months, quibbling over trifles and not putting in a single restriction on this great gift of land. They are responsible for this gigantic robbery and outrage on the children of California for all ages, and it is only charity to say that they may have acted in ignorance. But this convention of Washington territory should not have occasion to make the plea of ignorance so long as he could raise his voice

Oregon was in a very bad condition also and had shamefully wasted her school fund, but he had not the exact figures to give. Nebraska had the reputation of having managed her school fund better than any of the states

Tibbetts called attention to the empty chairs (there were thirty eight of them) and moved a call of the house, but being in committee of the whole that could not be allowed

Griffiths suggested that we could soon get in shape where a call would be in order

Tibbetts moved that the committee rise and report progress so voted

The president resumed the chair

Dyer reported and leave to sit again was granted.

Tibbetts moved a call of the house had, and by the time it was over only nine seats were vacant

Then Tibbetts moved that further proceedings be dispensed with, and it was so voted.

On motion of Warner the convention went back into committee and Dyer resumed the chair. Before recognizing Prosser again the chair delivered, for the seventh or eighth time to day his little speech on preserving order and paying proper respect to the delegate speaking and directed the sergeant at arms to preserve order and remove anybody that did not keep quiet.

Prosser resumed, commenting favorably on Nebraska's management as contrasted with most other states, but still her school fund was not half what it should be. There a good deal of land has been sold at $7 per acre, but by far the greater portion is under lease. His conclusion and argument was that school lands should never be sold, but leased. Wheat lands now can be leased for $5 to $6 per acre, and in Tacoma and Seattle lots 20x100 are being leased for from $100 to $450 per month, and in Seattle to-day such lots are being so leased, with the additional provision that three-story brick buildings shall be put on them and become the property of the lot owner He proposed to insist that the school lands of Washington should never be sold but kept in trust for the state's children This convention was the only body of men that can control this matter, and they are to be held strictly to their responsibility Whatever of loss, of robbery, shall come of their default will lie at their door To leave this matter to any legislature is to dissipate the funds and waste the property, and this convention will be wholly and solely responsible At least a million acres cannot be sold at 10 cents an acre now But the timber can be sold for as much as both land and timber together Hence he would sell the timber at once, and in thirty years the lands will be valuable again

He apologized for taking so much time and yet he was not contented in his seat without entering the strongest protest of which he was capable against any sale of these lands and against any system or plan which shall allow speculators or unwisdom or dishonesty either or all to take away any of this school land property

OTHER SPEECHES.

Prosser's Amendment Defeated and the Section Adopted

Moore said that the last speaker had delivered an able exhaustive, cogent and patriotic speech, and his data has been very instructive and he is entitled to thanks for his labor in accumulating it, and for his speech, and the manner in which he has delivered it "I heartily indorse his views and believe that the best interests of the state demand that these lands be kept off the market for a period of years at least If put on the market now they must come into competition with the government at government prices There are plenty of instances of land which has been sold at an increase of 1000 per cent, and with the prospects before us with our resources ready in view we should fall very far short of our duties to permit any arrangement whereby by jobbery or anything else this valuable inheritance shall be allowed to pass away in any degree from that posterity which is entitled to them."

Dunbar said that in spite of the speech of Prosser he had not changed his opinion and this was that we could not and ought not to try to fix an ironclad plan for the management of these school lands, but leave that to the legislature who will not be wolves to rob the children or state of their inheritance In the meanwhile, discussion will be going on in the press and among the people, and the legislature will know what is best to do The term 'robbing' did not affect him This was a question of cool business judgment, whether it was best to sell or hold. Washington territory was, in his opinion in a state of 'boom' and lands might realize as much now as thirty years hence. A man had better give his child a good fair education than neglect his education altogether in order to give his grandchild a magnificent education and we can't sell for any less than $10 an acre in any case and there are three or four sections alone which could be sold for $1 000 000 each and form a school fund available at once for educational purposes.

Cosgrove said much of this land was worthless, and other portions can only be used for fruit, and other portions must be cleared at great expense Who would take either kind on a five years lease? The people in his county wanted these lands sold and the $10 provision was an ample security, in his opinion.

Griffiths thought Prosser's speech should have convinced any person that there was no possibility of an argument against the policy of holding these lands. There is scarcely one-third of the school lands in this territory that will now bring $10 per acre, and that is as much as they could be sold at in the first five years. The second third would go in the second five and all that would be left at the end of ten years would be the fag ends of the land, on hillsides and other worthless localities. He was elected on a declaration of policy to reserve the school lands from sale, and proposed to carry out that policy He did not believe in Dunbar's apprehension on the "boom" question, and wished he could take him to Spokane Falls and show him the school section that lay one mile from the city limits. He would guarantee that before he got back he would never be willing to make that "boom" speech, but be quite ready to hold that land and get three or four times as much for it. As to lands that could not be readily leased now their condition would affect their selling price the same as their leasing price, and if five year leases were not long enough, it only needs the consent of congress to make the leases as long as necessary This convention, and not the legislature, is the place to settle this question If so able an argument as that of Colonel Prosser's is not listened to, why should we expect it to be listened to in a legislature, even if he is there to deliver it?

Bowen called attention to the fact that no part of the principal of the school fund could be spent so that it could not get away, and that need not frighten anybody No other state had such an enabling act that requires a minimum sum of $10 per acre Michigan had sold her primary school lands and built a $1,000,000 capital and paid a war debt with it The interest was paid into that primary school fund and if it was not lying there the state would be paying it on a capital debt or a war debt The swamp land were granted out in strips for building roads and the strip of that land went down oftentimes to 50 or 60 cents. But that was not a loss to the state Here in Washington we have the $10 restriction, and the appraisement system and the auction system on top of that

Cosgrove indignantly denied that the Ohio school fund had been squandered and Buchanan said "The same in Wisconsin"

Prosser did not reply to his critics, and his amendment being read again, was lost without a division

No further amendments appearing, poor old section 3 under its new head of section 5 was agreed to

A LIMIT ON SELLING

The Section Adopted as Reported From the Committee

The next section was taken up

Sec. 4. (Now section 6.)—Not more than one third of the lands granted to the state for educational purposes shall be sold prior to January 1 1895, and not more than two thirds prior to January 1 1900 provided, that nothing herein shall be so construed to prevent the state from selling the timber off of any of said lands in such manner and on such terms as may be prescribed by law and provided further, that no sale of timber lands shall be valid unless the full value of such lands is paid or secured to the state.

Browne offered a substitute, prohibiting the sale of more than one fourth of each section of these lands before January 1, 1895 another one fourth before January 1 1900, and another one fourth before January 1 1905 He favored Prosser's ideas in the main but did not vote for his substitute because he thought it was not elastic enough and did think that these lands ought to be sold from time to time instead of leasing and that to sell only one fourth of each section would increase the value of that portion remaining In fact, unless a part was sold none of it would become valuable. The portion sold is built upon and increases the value of the rest To apply this plan would he thought result in bringing millions into the school funds.

Prosser asked if Browne thought it right to speculate with trust property

Browne thought if the state could make money by speculating in the manner he had indicated he was willing it should Even holding this land is speculating, because it is holding it for a rise in value so as to get more money for it. Wherever it is advisable to lease for long terms, he had no doubt congress would grant the necessary authority whenever the people asked for it.

Cosgrove considered this a very dangerous proposition, with all due deference to the gentleman from Spokane (Browne) What is wanted now is a school fund for schools and teachers, and whatever may be said of California, it has the best and most liberally paid school system of any state in the Union.

Dunbar thought that when once the policy of selling was determined on, the report of the committee was as clear and feasible a plan as any he had seen He was not expecting to go into the town lot business for not more than one section in a hundred was near enough to any city to be sold in town lots.

Stiles was more and more in favor of the committee's section the more he hears the debate and substitutes. He did not believe this convention knew enough of the circumstances to decide on their leasing or selling was the best plan, and was willing to trust the legislature He deprecated this constant looking forward to future legislatures as land sharks, thieves and defrauders. They were a part of ourselves and it was poor policy to befoul our own nest. He should favor "striking out" rather than "adding on" in future debates on this article, and leaving the legislature with fewer restrictions rather than more.

T M Reed thought it wise and safe to adopt this section just as the committee reported it

Browne replied to the criticisms on his plan claiming that under it about $6,000,000 could be sold in the first five years and even if only a half or a quarter of that should be sold we should have a handsome school revenue now and a still greater one in a very few years.

Browne's substitute was lost—ayes 17 noes 44

On T M Reed's motion, stumpage was included in what could be sold off school lands.

The section was agreed to

MANNER OF DISPOSAL.

Valuable Lands Near Cities To Be Platted in Blocks and Lots

Sec 7—Not more than one-quarter of a section of any lands of the state shall be offered for sale in one parcel and all lands within the limits of any incorporated city, or within one mile of the boundary of any incorporated city, where the valuation of such land shall be found by appraisement to exceed $200 per acre, shall before the same shall be sold be platted into lots and blocks of not more than four acres in a block and not more than one block shall be offered for sale in one parcel

Joy proposed to amend so as to provide that the section should apply to school sections any part of which was within one mile of any city limits.

Dunbar opposed and it was lost.

Stiles moved to strike out all except the words "not more than one-quarter of a section of any lands of the state shall be offered for sale in one parcel," and argued that to subdivide the land in this manner a mile from some small city not being the proprietor of a healthy 'boom' was to make it useless either to sell or to farm Let the legislature attend to this was his reiterated cry

T M. Reed thought the section was right as it is because the land had got to be worth at least $200 per acre before this section applied.

Browne offered a substitute, dropping out the one mile limit and substituting "near any city," reducing the value from $200 to $100, and providing for five-acre blocks instead of four, and explained his reasons.

Dunbar did not like it, because "near a city" was too indefinite Nor did he like to order the platting of lands not worth over $100 per acre and four was as good to him for this purpose as five.

Lillis favored the committee's section likewise Browne's amendment was lost.

Stiles withdrew his amendment, and moved to change "four acres" to "five acres," adopted by 29 to 19

CONSIDERATION COMPLETED,

And the Article Reported to the Convention for Action

The next section disclaimed the right to claim lands under United States patents, and as this has already been provided for, it was stricken out on motion of Dunbar

Dickey moved an additional section (being the minority recommendation signed by himself and Bowen Eldridge Kellogg Joy and Shoudy) giving preference rights of purchase to parties having made valuable improvements on shore lands

Griffiths opposed lost ayes 22 noes 25

Weir moved an additional section to accomplish the same result, going into more detail and limiting the application of this section to valuable improvements made before the date of the enrolling act in February, 1889 and further limiting the time within which parties may take advantage of this section. Weir made an argument in favor

T M Reed called the chair's attention to Weir's wandering away from his subject.

Weir was only drawing a few comparisons and the chair interposing no objection he continued to draw. He repeated substantially his argument of a few days ago, which was fully reported at the time

Sturdevant offered an amendment "providing, however that the person offering to purchase shall be an old settler," not entertained by the chair though it entertained the convention.

Joy moved a proviso that no shore land shall be sold between any port or government work and the navigable water accepted by Weir

Stiles moved to amend so as to grant this purchase right only to parties occupying the uplands fronting such shore lands, that is to riparian owners who, he knew, had gone and made improvements in good faith, believing in their right to do so whereas others went onto these lands knowing that the general holdings of the courts had been against them. The one class he could vote for, the other he could not.

Griffiths criticised the words "so much as shall be necessary" as being an indefinite way of saying how much land these shore people may purchase, and he opposed the section anyhow

So did Dunbar who did not like to see a principle adopted one day and its exact opposite adopted on the next.

Sullivan of Whitman moved a call of the house, but could not do it, as the convention was in committee of the whole.

Weir pleaded for consideration for "such a little one" saying that this affected such an infinitely small portion of the tide land area.

Mires moved to rise and report the article.

Cosgrove wanted to amend that motion, and finally got a chance to do so by asking that the article be printed. His motion failed—26 to 25.

Griffiths moved that the committee rise, lost.

Weir protested against filibustering, and E H Sullivan called him to order

Dunbar moved to rise and report progress, out of order.

Moore moved to rise and report progress; lost.

Dunbar claimed his motion in order and renewed it, viz That the committee rise and report this article.

Kinnear objected again, but the chair ruled it in order this time and put it. It succeeded, ayes 31 noes 28.

The president resumed the chair, and Dyer reported the article to the convention.

E H Sullivan moved to adjourn, carried, ayes 28 noes 25. The convention adjourned to 9 o clock Saturday morning.

THE TASK NEARLY DONE

It Was a Long Lane, but the Turn Is Near.

TUESDAY WILL BE THE LAST DAY

The Constitution Will Then Be Submitted to the People for Their Judgment—The Political Outlook—Etc

OLYMPIA W. T. Aug 16—The debate on the report of the committee on the state, school and granted lands article is growing tiresome The convention listened to a two hours speech to day by Colonel W F Prosser, of North Yakima who was in favor of holding on to the school lands He quoted article after article relative to the school funds of other states that had disappeared in consequence of disposing of the lands at a small figure Colonel Prosser who is an old member of congress from Tennessee is an effective talker but the convention serves him a good deal like the members are occasionally served in the house of representatives at Washington A large number of delegates left their seats and wandered out on the grass plots on either side of the capitol leaving an array of empty chairs A call of the house brought them in and after Colonel Prosser got started again they went out one by one amid suppressed laughter Somebody came in and quietly reported to the newspaper men that the outside delegates who composed the largest body of the deserters, were lolling around on the grass playing mumblety peg, and threatening to move to adjourn the convention sine die

The article will doubtless pass to morrow and then after a few odds and ends are cleared up, Dr Minor's hard worked committee on revision enrollment and adjustment will make its final report the constitution will be engrossed the members will sign it and then scatter to their homes to fix up their fences for the first day of October when the document goes before the people The convention ought to adjourn sine die on Tuesday night next

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK

I had a long talk on politics with one of the delegates to day He said among other things

"But few of the politicians here believe that the withdrawal of Colonel J C Haines for the senatorial contest amounts to anything No one with whom I have talked believes that he ever had a ghost of a chance for that high office Many laugh at the idea of a county in the new state with gall enough to claim a governor and a senator, too The people in the other part of the state outside of that county are smiling about it This idea of hogging everything which is so manifest in certain directions in the convention, and which has been sat down upon, is in the same line Governor Squire was always a strong man for the United States senate from west of the Cascades and he has many friends east of the mountains besides he has made no combinations in King county with any rings Haines could get no strength from the other side and again he has not the elements of a successful public man This state is entirely too large to be run by any section, and some people will find it out at the Walla Walla convention"

The delegate in question believed that the governorship would go to the center of the state the two United States senators from east and west of the mountains respectively, the lieutenant governor from the west the congressman from the east and so on Harmony and fair play, and not dictation is what is wanted in the ranks of the republican party at the election six weeks hence

I hear of several more candidates for office A Tacoma man says Stiles, of that city, will be in the field for one of the supreme judgeships He has been making an excellent record here, and is looked upon as an able lawyer

Editor P B Johnson, of the Walla Walla Union is said to be a candidate for commissioner of the land office. He practiced law in California and Walla Walla served seven years as chief clerk and register of the general land office at the latter place and it is certain that none of the soil stuck to his fingers else he would have a fat purse

Judge Dennison of Vancouver, is named for superior judge of Clarke Skamania Wahkiakum and Pacific counties. He has been chief justice and associate justice of the territory

NOTES.

The steamer Multnomah arrived here last night and will soon go on the Tacoma Seattle Olympia and Kamilche route

There are great crowds of people going to the Gray's harbor country every day, most of whom are bound for Aberdeen

The Yakima folks have been sending some fine fruits and melons to the members of the convention

The Olympia people are very angry at a Seattle newspaper which proclaims itself as in favor of the capital either at Yakima Ellensburgh or Pasco They say that Seattle promised to stand by Olympia on the capital question, and has sold them out

A petition to congress was circulated to day and signed pretty generally by the members of the convention in favor of placing the old war worn veteran, General Milroy, on the retired list General Milroy, who is living here is growing feeble He is a hero of two wars having served in Mexico as well as the rebellion

Chief Justice Hanford arrived in the city today

The tide flat jumpers who were knocked out by the harbor line established have gone home disgusted

SKETCHES OF MEMBERS

Hiram F Allen the brother of Delegate Allen, who is one of the youngest members of the convention has a host of friends here, where he spent many years of his life He is tall in stature, modest in demeanor and has hitherto had but little to say He was away from the convention a week, looking after the loss of his library and other effects after the Spokane Falls fire

S H Berry, of Chehalis who is another quiet member, is a tall handsome man of 40 years, who has missed but few hours in the convention

Doctor N G Blalock, who is one of the old pioneers of Walla Walla a practicing physician and wheat grower, has been an attentive listener every day, and once in a while his voice has been heard on various propositions. He has always spoken clearly and in a scholarly manner, and has occupied the chair in committee of the whole on more than one occasion. The doctor is accompanied by his daughter and is the only North Carolinian in the convention

The gentleman who always smiles when the bunch grass delegates attempt to pronounce the name of his county, (Wahkiakum), is O. A. Bowen of Skamockawa, a lumberman, formerly of Michigan He is dignified and his equanimity is only disturbed when he hears somebody speak of Walk-a-kum He too makes a cool and collected presiding officer, and is chairman of the special committee to devise a seal for the new state. He is accompanied by Mrs Bowen

J J Browne, of Spokane Falls who has had his family here with him since the opening of the convention, is one of the effective talkers of the convention, and being a banker as well as a lawyer he has especially given his attention to all matters of revenue, taxation and finance Save one week when he was absent at Spokane Falls after the fire there, he has given strict attention to the debates has often been heard, and has had several of the measures which he has presented engrafted in the constitution Mr Browne who is an Ohio man is worth several millions, and is president of the Browne National Bank of Spokane Falls. His money has not made him proud haughty or hard to appreciate. He will be the nominee of his party (democratic) for United States senator

Daniel Buchanan, of Adams county is a wheat grower and shipper from near Ritzville He is the father of the convention at least in years and having lived some years in Wisconsin, is fond of quoting from the laws and constitution of that state Mr Buchanan is firm and determined in his opinions on all subjects and has been an effective speaker commanding the general attention of his brother delegates His next birthday will bring him to three score years and ten

J A Burk who is a New Yorker by birth comes from Kalama, on the Columbia river in Cowlitz county He is a farmer with a pleasant face iron gray beard and wears spectacles Mr Burk has not engaged in debate, but has now and then asked several speakers some very suggestive questions

Harrison Clothier, of Mount Vernon the county seat of Skagit county, sits in his seat and says 'yes' and 'no' with regularity He does not speak on any question but attends to the committee work assigned to him, and intelligently discusses the matters with his colleagues on the outside He is a New Yorker is getting well on toward 50 years of age, and is a storekeeper

C T Cook is also a storekeeper He is a little over 33 years of age and from the Empire state He comes from Rockford, Spokane county and is a bright looking young man of pleasing manners and address but his voice has not been heard save at roll call He is a good outside worker

George Comegys, of Oakesdale, one of the Whitman county delegation—a strong one in the convention, is a lawyer and a stockman, who never fails to speak when he has anything to say, and he generally says it well He was once speaker of the lower house of the territorial legislature and is a man of broad and liberal ideas. He is chairman of the committee on Federal relations, boundaries and immigration

The excessively baldheaded young man from Garfield county, who tramped with Sherman through Georgia as a private in the army, and who is now commander of the department of Washington and Alaska G A R, has been heard on nearly every proposition before the convention He is one of the lawyers of the body, and hence a talker and an earnest one

Mr Cosgrove enjoys the distinction of being elected as an independent, but is a staunch republican Mrs. Cosgrove and a little daughter is here with him

D J Crowley, of Walla Walla has no wife He is a bachelor He and P C Sullivan, of Tacoma, who have been inseparable friends for years, sit together Sullivan is a bachelor too, and both are able lawyers. Mr Crowley is yankee-born, of Irish parentage, and though but 35 years of age, silver threads are plentifully spread throughout the hair on his well shaped head He speaks quickly, earnestly and logically, and generally convinces those who listen to him. Mr Crowley is regarded as one of the best lawyers in the convention.

One of the two editors in the body is Frank M Dallam, of Davenport, Lincoln county. His wife and little child are here with him. He runs the Lincoln county Times, a good newspaper, and formerly owned the Spokane Review. Dallam is an intelligent listener, but not a debater. He can write well and quickly, and if the business of the convention was done that way he would be heard from oftener.

There are two pedagogues in the convention—one of them is S A. Dickey of Sackman, the only delegate from Kitsap county He is a bachelor and while he has never attached himself to a wife strange to say, he is in favor of woman suffrage and had the courage to say so and vote so in the convention when that subject was before it. Mr Dickey has dark auburn hair and full whiskers and has never missed a day's work in the convention

The Kitsap statesman is what some of the friends of R O Dunbar of Goldendale call him. He is a firm built little man 41 years of age, who studied law in Ohio under H H Ellwood [illegible] of Tacoma the first [illegible] of territory [illegible] small in stature. Mr Dunbar is a host in himself and recognized as one of the strong men in the convention He grows eloquent occasionally and never tiresome. Mr Dunbar is in favor of [illegible] A Seattle newspaper recently recommended him for [illegible]

THE HELENA CONVENTION

Its Work Is Nearly Done and Adjournment Is Expected To-Day

HELENA Mont Aug 16—This is the fortieth day of the convention All are now expected to adjourn to-morrow All the propositions have been cleared up and there is no further business to transact except the report of the committee on revision and phraseology which reported that work had been expeditiously performed and that part of it was submitted with a view of expediting matters and getting them out of the way so that when the others were ready they could be considered. The committee was granted leave to sit during the remainder of the session

Several of the members who were tired of the long siege asked for leave of absence—Goddard, Ramsdell and Rick until to morrow and Eaton for the rest of the session. He requested that a blank leaf be left for him to sign as [illegible] should be signed in alphabetical order and he would be able to sign in forty eight hours after adjournment Leave was granted

A numbered list of from one to twenty two of the articles as they shall be placed in the constitution including the preamble was presented by the committee There are quite a number of amendments in the hands of the committee and it will take some time to consider them It was resolved that they be considered in convention instead of in committee of the whole The members are allowed fifteen days after the adjournment to sign the constitution

Collins and Browne asked for leave of absence for thirty days. Cooper said if any more were granted this privilege there would be no quorum and he moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was adopted Carried

A resolution relating to the pay of clerks and employes and expenses was submitted with it an ordinance declaring that the appropriation by congress was not sufficient to pay the expenses of the convention that it was necessary to employ additional officers and incur extra expenses, and it was ordained that $3500 or so much thereof as may be necessary is declared to be a charge against the state

J K Toole offered a memorial to congress calling attention to the fact that the orderly and expeditious transaction of the business of the convention required an additional force and an expense aggregating $[illegible] which it is believed congress intended should be borne by the United States The memorial requests congress to appropriate this amount or so much as is necessary

Chicago was endorsed as the place for holding the proposed world's fair Warren suggested Helena

THE BISMARCK CONVENTION

Various Articles and Sections Adopted at Yesterday's Session

BISMARCK, Dak, Aug. 16—The convention has completed the consideration of the article on corporation It provides that any combination between individuals, corporations and associations having for its object the controlling of the price of any product or article of manufacture is prohibited and declared unlawful and against public policy and that any and all franchises shall be forfeited when the owners violate this article beyond [illegible]

The article on education was adopted with a few amendments.

The article on public lands was adopted after being amended so that the leasing of the lands shall be under the control of the board on university and school lands

The article on county and township organization was adopted after being amended so that it is virtually a copy of the Illinois system, also a section was added, defining the county offices to be filled.

All of this afternoon has been occupied in the consideration of the revenue and taxation system to be established by the legislature. The gross earnings system was defeated The article as adopted provides that all property shall be taxed alike

The article providing for the future amendment of the constitution was adopted. It provides that after the proposed amendment receives a majority vote of two successive legislative assemblies it shall be submitted to a vote of the people

The section providing that all flowing streams and natural waters shall forever remain the property of the state for irrigation, mining or other purposes, was adopted by a unanimous vote

Parsons made another and this time successful attempt to incorporate an article [illegible] in the constitution prohibiting the issuing of black lists between railroads or other companies or employers.

BISMARCK CHOSEN THE CAPITAL.

At the night session Bismarck was made the capital of North Dakota in the constitution Other public institutions were located as previously published When the vote was announced the immense concourse of visitors shook the capitol with applause Hats were thrown in the air, ladies waved their fans and handkerchiefs and everybody save the representatives of the defeated candidates for the capital rejoiced over the settlement of the vexed question

THE PENSION BUREAU

General Bussey's Opinion of the Relations Between Tanner and Secretary Noble.

CHICAGO, Aug 16—General Cyrus Bussey, assistant secretary of the interior who is here now, in an interview on the relations of Secretary Noble and Commissioner of Pensions Tanner, said "I can't say that Secretary Noble and Corporal Tanner are on friendly terms, yet the secretary has not demanded Tanner's resignation, nor have they had any words, yet it is certain that the methods of the pension commissioner attracted the attention of Secretary Noble some time ago"

Continued the general "He appointed a committee a while ago to examine some of Tanner's transactions. That committee is now about ready to make its report. If certain charges against Tanner are proved, there is no doubt General Noble will demand his dismissal He certainly won't do anything until then and perhaps after all everything will be satisfactory"

"What do you think of Tanner?"

"He is a hard worker and is [illegible]"

THE CHEROKEE COMMISSION

All Negotiations at an End Until the Council Meets

MUSCOGEE I T, August 16—All negotiations between the Cherokees and the commission is at an end until the council meets in November Chief Mays holding that if he had authority to appoint the conference committee the action would not be binding without the ratification of the council

Judge Wilson and Governor Fairchild, of the commission, are being entertained by the city, and after a few days of rest they will go to the Chickasaw country

Judge Wilson stated to night that Chief Mays opposed the negotiations very strongly but that it was only a question of a little time when the Indians, who act slowly, will favor not only the sale of the strip, but the opening up of the territory, as the power of the press cannot be long resisted

Colonel Boudinot is preparing for an exhaustive reply to Chief Mays letter to the commission

A JEWELRY STORE ROBBED

Burglars Open a Safe and Carry Away $8000 Worth of Goods.

BOSTON, Aug 16—The jewelry store of William B Morse on Fremont street, was entered by burglars last night and robbed of valuables amounting to $8000. The burglars were evidently experts. They opened the safe which contained diamonds, watches and jewelry of all kinds They took only the most expensive articles, including $4000 worth of diamonds.

The Foresters' Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug 16—The Foresters, having completed their war of independence, were not disposed to labor very hard this morning. It had been determined yesterday to continue the office of permanent secretary as a life office. This morning a motion was made to reconsider this action, and establish a secretaryship the term of which should extend from one convention to the next. The motion was defeated.

Sullivan Found Guilty.

PURVIS, Miss., August 16—The jury at 5 P. M returned a verdict finding Sullivan guilty of prize fighting. A motion in arrest of judgment was made and will be heard to-morrow.

Or plain, or beautiful, the while,

Unless her teeth are like the snow,
And if she fail in this,
And can't afford to smile or kiss,
She must use SOZODONT, I trow

DOWN AN EMBANKMENT

A Passenger Train Wrecked in Pennsylvania.

THREE LIVES INSTANTLY LOST

About Twenty Five Persons Injured, Some Fatally Several Marvellous Escapes The Cause of the Accident

PITTSBURG Pa Aug 16 The south bound passenger train on the Butler branch of the Western Pennsylvania railroad which left Butler at 2 [illegible] o'clock this afternoon jumped the track at Curversville station, and the entire train consisting of two passenger cars and a combination [illegible] went over an embankment. Three persons were killed and [illegible] twenty five others were injured a number of whom will die

The killed are as follows W T Myers of Lawrenceville Pa a child of Mrs Farrell of Butler Mrs Duff an old lady residence unknown

The wounded as far as known were Ex Mayor Evans of Pittsburg seriously hurt in the head shoulder Captain Lowry, of Pittsburg, head badly cut D A Jones and wife of Pittsburg seriously hurt and bruised [illegible] Colonel Jowles, of Pittsburg, fatally injured Conductor Gray of Pittsburg, slightly injured [illegible] Brakeman Butler seriously injured internally Brakeman Karns of Butler [illegible] Mrs [illegible] of Pittsburg injured [illegible] Edward [illegible] of Pittsburg cut in the head Captain Crace of Jamestown N Y slightly injured About fifteen others were more or less injured, whose names are unobtainable at this writing.

The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails on a small trestle The rails were on stringers, which had rotted with time and long service

The engine passed over the bridge safely but the first car was derailed and plunged down into the abyss, some thirty feet below

The rails ploughed through the second and the escapes were miraculous One lady had her dress cut from her wrists to her shoulders and another a small piece of her cheek [illegible] third had her chin cut and many others in the second car narrowly escaped

A FATAL EXPLOSION

Horrible Scenes on a Crowded Street of New York

NEW YORK Aug 16—At 8 o clock this evening an explosion of gas in a crockery store on the corner of Grand and Clinton streets drove the contents of the store through the plate glass windows into the street One man was killed and another probably fatally injured and about thirty persons wounded

Immediately after the explosion a volume of flames poured out into the street Everywhere men women and children were seen scrambling with the blood gushing from their cuts and gashes

Morris Jacobs 17 years of age bled to death almost instantly He was passing the place when a huge piece of plate glass flying before the terrible force behind it, tore his right side and back so that the flesh and clothing hung from him in chunks Two men dragged his body away from the flames and ran for an ambulance. Jacobs agony was short for he died almost immediately

Jacob Peck, [illegible] covered with blood rushed frantically about He had been made insane and fought the policeman desperately until he became exhausted He was taken to Bellevue hospital with a fractured skull

THE CRUISE OF THE ALBATROSS

Some of the Discoveries Made Along the Pacific Coast.

WASHINGTON Aug 16—Professor Charles H Gilbert who has been for the past seven months chief naturalist on board the United States fish commission steamer Albatross has just returned to Washington and is now writing up the collections made during that time off the Pacific coast

Professor Gilbert says that after joining the ship at San Francisco early last winter the work commenced on the southern coast of California and was continued for three months between Point Conception and San Diego The main work there was [illegible] and procuring deep sea material [illegible] thirty five [illegible] species of fish not known before on the coast were taken some of them being entirely new to science

A new fishing bank was discovered in the vicinity of San Diego and a company has already begun to fish on it. Professor Gilbert thinks there is a possibility of some fishing industry being established there. He does not, however regard it as a very important fishing bank

After completing the work on that part of the coast a cruise was made into the Gulf of California partly for the purpose of looking into the oyster question there and partly to ascertain whether the experiment of introducing shad in the Colorado river had been successful No shad were found in this river although some had been planted there several years previously The waters were evidently not suited to the species.

South of Guaymas beds of oysters were found which are thought to be fully equal to the best on the Eastern coast, and the question now to be determined is whether there are any suitable places on the California coast where they can be propagated. A part of the work was of scientific interest many new and very interesting forms being obtained.

Having finished its southern cruise the vessel proceeded northward and did some work off the coast of Oregon and Washington territory locating fishing banks there.

A STRANGE WOLF STORY

Two Mexican Children Bitten by a Mad Beast, One of Them Dying

ALBUQUERQUE, N M Aug 16—A Mexican boy was bitten by a mad wolf in the San Andreas mountains recently, and died in great agony The scene around the little fellow's bed was heart rending, for he acted like a wolf and, although small, it took several men to hold him down.

He and his brother were playing a few yards from the house when the wolf attacked them, lacerating their faces and hands, the younger boy, however, receiving the deepest wounds. A Mexican herder's attention was attracted by their cries, and he went to the assistance of the boys He lassoed the wolf, throwing the maddened beast to the ground and having no knife, tightened the rope and strangled it to death It is feared that the other boy will die of his wounds, which refuse to heal.

A TENNESSEE TRAGEDY

An Ex-Cowboy Shoots His Wife Fatally, and Kills Himself.

JACKSON Tenn Aug 16—A terrible tragedy was enacted this morning ten miles northeast of this place

Henry Prewit an ex cowboy from Texas, shot his young wife through the neck inflicting a fatal wound wounded his mother in law, and then shot himself through the head dying instantly A warrant was out for Prewit's arrest for moonshining, and he was endeavoring to induce his wife to accompany him to another county, which she refused to do, owing to ill health

Prewit was a desperate character, and had boasted to his wife that he had been married four times, and had killed one wife and three or four men The couple had been married but four months

Voorhees on the Right Side for Once

TERRE HAUTE Ind. Aug 16—Senator Voorhees heartily sustains Attorney General Miller in what he did to protect Judge Field He believes, in view of the fact that Field's life was threatened by as desperate a man as Terry was it was entirely proper that the attorney general should see that no harm should come to him while in the discharge of his duty

The Death of Congressman Laird Expected.

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug 16—The death of Congressman James Laird is expected at any moment. Laird has been ill for some time. This morning he sank into unconsciousness and his physicians have given up all hope of his recovery

A VIGOROUS KICK.

A Merchant's Wife the Bone of Contention. A Denunciation

A well known merchant who has been greatly benefitted by Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, desired to give it to his wife, who was very delicate, but out of caution first consulted his physician Dr W H Griswold of 800 Market street. The doctor, who is one of our leading practitioners objected, saying he had never seen a sarsaparilla that did not contain potash, which thinned the blood, that his patient did not have any vitality to lose, and that what delicate people need is not decreased vitality, but more blood He consented when assured that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla was directly opposed to the old mistaken blood thinning idea of other sarsaparillas, and that on the contrary by specific vegetable alteratives it stimulated the excretory organs promoted digestion, and repaired nutrition, hence created new blood and was the very thing for feeble people. The above explains the hundreds of cases in which aged, enfeebled, delicate and run down people, have been built up by Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla after the potash sarsaparillas failed. Its effects are creating a sensation.—S. F. Examiner.

FREIGHT RATES FOR SPOKANE

Copies of Dispatches Sent by Mr Fulton From Portland

SPOKANE FALLS W T Aug 16.—The following telegrams were received to-day

PORTLAND Aug 15

To H G Stimmel, Agent Advise Mr Dobson at once that we will put in effect August 19 from Eastern terminus to Spokane Falls a rate of 60 cents per 100 on hay in straight carloads Also the same rate on corn oats and chopped feed, straight or mixed carloads Give this information to the Review S G FULTON

PORTLAND Aug 16

H G Stimmel Agent I am advised that the price of pressed brick free on board cars at St Louis varies according to the shade and fitness of the brick from $15 to $20 per thousand the lightest being the cheapest, and the price increases the darker the brick in color and the harder they are burned. The average weight is about six pounds each S G FULTON

PORTLAND August 16

Have arranged with the Oregon & Washington Territory railway for the application of a special rate of 12½ cents per hundred pounds which is half tariff, on brick on carloads of [illegible] 000 or more each from Walla Walla to Spokane Falls, when consigned to owners of buildings within the burned district who have filed a copy of their building permit with you S G FULTON

AN INTERVIEW WITH SHARON

The Ex-Senator's Son Refuses to Express an Opinion on the Killing

NEW YORK Aug 16.—Frederick W Sharon son of Ex-Senator Sharon, who was seen concerning Judge Terry's death, said he was greatly surprised.

"Do you think that Nagle was justified?"

"I don't want to talk on the subject" was the reply.

"Did you expect him to come to Judge Field?"

"Terry's threats certainly warranted [illegible] but, as I understand it the judge himself did not expect any harm to come to him, although attempts might be made"

"What effect will this have on the Sharon case?"

"None whatever so far as we are concerned. How can it have any? Is there any danger of the case going against us?"

Sharon expressed himself over and over again as glad of Judge Field's security, but would say nothing of the killing and would not express an opinion, saying "He is dead let him rest."

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Pasco is hardly pursuing a normal course of things and people there may be excused for trying new schemes and plans, but when they pretend to be able to convert the sage plain that so graphically and universally surrounds that small community, into a blooming and fruiting peach grove by the mere grafting of choice peach stock into the sage brush foundation we must draw the line

We may console ourselves for the exceedingly dry season we are enduring by the reflection that the Atlantic seaboard has suffered immense losses by storms which have devastated whole counties if not states Our region has a tendency to summer drouth, and that being our normal condition we can make the best of it, while the storm swept East is despoiled of its harvests and made desolate by fresh floods Comparisons may be odious but the Pacific coast country can stand comparison with any section

A woman was hanged at Philadelphia last month who for the sake of $400 insurance on their lives, had deliberately poisoned her husband and two little girls It is impossible that any one who had the mother feeling and whose mind was in order could have committed such an infamous and unnatural crime Perhaps the evidence could not show it but that woman was insane as it would be a libel on womanhood to believe that any sane woman could do such a deed While a husband could by unkindness alienate a wife's affection and drive her to commit murder it would not be possible for a woman possessed of her true mind and in her senses to destroy her little children

With a commerce run down at the heel and enterprising manufacturers anxious to open trade with all the world the United States congress looks on with indifference and enforces the democratic dogmas of past failure instead of awakening to a sense of the situation and putting in [illegible] [illegible] sources at work We have a surplus in the treasury to use and do not dare to use it All the enterprise of our people is handicapped by governmental indifference The maritime powers and some that can hardly be called so are [illegible] [illegible] in sustaining steamship lines to South America [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] this nation which claims to exercise a supervision over all American interests [illegible]

THE BEHRING SEA MATTER.

Senator Hale's Views—He Does Not Think Serious Trouble Is Likely to Arise

A special to the Boston Herald from Ellsworth Me., gives an interview on the Behring sea matter with Eugene Hale member of the senate committee on our relations with Canada Mr Hale said that his committee did not take testimony upon the Behring sea questions while on the Pacific coast He said "The committee felt that the subject was immediately in the hands of the state department and is likely to be the subject matter of negotiation with the foreign office of the British government For this reason though the subject is peculiarly within the scope of the work of the committee it was not deemed advisable to open the question in advance of any negotiation that might be set on foot by the executive department of either government The committee did not find any agitation or excited feeling upon the subject either in our own territory or in British Columbia and I may say for myself not claiming to speak for the committee that I came away from Victoria more than ever impressed with the view that no serious trouble is likely to arise between Great Britain and the United States on account of any local feeling either side of the line on this question

"That efficient measures will be taken to protect the fisheries especially the seal in these waters I feel well [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in such a step see anything [illegible] Canada or England and [illegible] would seem that such measures would be in the common interest of all nations [illegible] [illegible] late transactions in the [illegible] waters gave rise to regulation upon [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tions may not be conflict [illegible] [illegible] and without at [illegible] question of the [illegible] I see [illegible] expect in such a case that the [illegible] and good fortune which has [illegible] the present administration [illegible] [illegible] the conduct of the [illegible] in the Samoan controversy will bring [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] solution [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of strained [illegible] the two governments [illegible] and no [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] may make it proper for the [illegible] on Canadian relations to further consider the subject But this is only conjecture and should it happen I have no doubt that the work of the committee in co-operation with the state department will be toward a peaceful solution of all difficulties I am only in what I say giving my own impression upon the subject and do not in any manner speak for the administration

RECENT REPUBLICAN UTTERANCES.

The republican state convention of Pennsylvania, although being called for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for only one office, that of state treasurer, has nevertheless created some little stir throughout the political camps in other states, by its clearly spoken words regarding the protection of American industries. The opening sentences of the platform, which were adopted unanimously, contain these words:

> The doctrines enunciated at Chicago in June 1888 by the national republican party received the indorsement of the people at the polls in the following November. Upon them the Keystone state set the seal of her approval by 80,000 majority. With renewed emphasis we reaffirm those cardinal principles, and again submit them to the electors of Pennsylvania for their approbation.

Here is a gentle reminder to those free-traders in the democratic ranks who are striving to delude themselves and others into a belief that the principles of protection are losing strength among the industrial classes of the Eastern states. We of the Pacific Northwest, whose interests are entwined with wool and lumber and coal, know that the "industrial classes" on this coast will continue to demand a strong and vigorous policy of protection at the hands of the national government, but there is a constant effort on the part of democratic newspapers of the Pacific coast to show that the majority in this section are on the wrong track. The opening sentences of the Pennsylvania platform declare, with all the power that words can convey, the faith of the republican party in the principles for which it contended during the last presidential campaign, and the purpose of the party to hew closely to the same line in subsequent campaigns. New York, which in 1884 had given a democratic plurality, approved the doctrines enunciated at Chicago, as did also Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois. In each of these five states all the great factors of industry, agriculture, manufacturing, mining, shipping and commerce are particularly prosperous. Widely diversified industries are found within these states, and in the cities as well as in the country, with few exceptions, the growth of the republican sentiment was to be noticed. Even in the Southern states there was a marked increase in the republican vote and the people of the Middle states voted as zealously for Harrison and protection as did those of the Western commonwealths. In the face of past events it does not seem likely that there will be any need to make the platform of principles of the republican party in 1892 much different from what it was in 1888. The platform further declares:

> We greatly rejoice in the national victory of 1888 for a two fold reason. First, because it was fought and won under Pennsylvania leadership and upon Pennsylvania's platform and, second, because the executive and legislative power in the Union has thereby been restored to the republican party, which, within a period of less than thirty years, has rescued the country from the perils of rebellion, of treacherous reconstruction, of financial dishonor, and of reckless industrial legislation, all of which were distinctly involved in the policy or acts of the democratic party as now governed.

In this is manifest a measure of local pride in the chairman of the national committee which is quite pardonable, and the republican party all over the country will recognize the clear portrait painting of the Pennsylvania republicans when they speak of "the democratic party as now governed." The sectional leaders of a Solid South have that party in 1889 as completely under their control as it was in 1861. It was then, as many too well remember, bent upon acts of financial dishonor and of reckless industrial legislation.

But let us read on. We find the Pennsylvania platform exceedingly good reading, not only to republicans but also to democrats, as it will serve to show the latter the impassable wall which the policy of the present administration is building up between them and their hopes for political preferment three years hence:

> We cordially indorse the administration of President Harrison because it steadily devotes itself to the work of broad and intelligent administration by competent and trusty officials, and makes its rule of inflexible duty the faithful observance, not the hypocritical evasion of the public statutes; because it proposes to honestly collect and to disburse the proceeds of public taxation and seeks so to adjust the burdens thereof that those persons and interests able to bear most shall bear most and those able to bear least shall bear least, and that in all cases the vexatious and inquisitorial forms of taxation shall be first reduced and abolished; because it is pledged to give to suffering communities needed help in the necessary work of public education, in order that thereby the citizenship of this whole country may be elevated; because it aims to secure by adequate legislation protection against the offenses of suppressed and miscounted ballots, of perverted returns and false certificates of election, and of murderous methods of maintaining the insufferable wrongs which now stain the records of Southern states and touch the honor of the Southern people, making of elections in most of them a fraud or farce, whose fruits are a large body of democratic usurpers now assuming to represent those states in the legislative halls of the nation; and because more than all else it makes as its cardinal aim in foreign affairs the vindication of the rights of American and the defense of the honor, safety and dignity of all Americans, and in domestic affairs the development of our own resources, the advancement of our own interest, the enlargement of our own industries and the upbuilding of the labor of our own people, against all of which the democratic party stands as an ever present danger and menace.

The paragraph which strongly puts forth the principle of protection "as the corner stone of our political faith" we presented yesterday. There is one point, however, to which we might further call attention:

> Pennsylvania democrats have until recently claimed the unique distinction of being democratic protectionists. At last, however, the controlling element in that party, not only in the nation but in the state, has unequivocally announced itself against protection.

The party leaders of the Cleveland stamp are of the rule or ruin sort. They have given up the attempt to conciliate Randall and his friends, and if the manufacturing interests of the East can be broken down there will be plenty of cheap labor for the aristocracy of the South. The Pennsylvania republicans say they will "take advantage of this opportunity and thereby deal democracy its deathblow in Pennsylvania." The platform also advocates "such amendments to the pension laws as will make adequate provision for all honorably discharged veterans of the late war whose advancing years, wounds or other infirmities disable them from total or partial self-support. Those who saved the nation from dissolution should be saved by the nation from penury." These are utterances which all throughout commend themselves to the patriotic people of the United States.

AFRICAN SLAVE TRADE.

The slave trade revives in Africa because it again becomes a source of vast profit to those engaged in it. The Arab finds a market for human flesh in many parts of the dark continent, off the Zanzibar coast, in the Comoro islands and even in Madagascar. Every city in Morocco has its slave mart. In brief, almost every Mohammedan town is a receiving and distributing center for slaves. A freshly organized slaving center has just been erected in the heart of one the most hopeful districts in Africa—the north end of Lake Nyassa. Civilizing and missionary agencies, after years of work and after the most serious cost in lives and money, were just beginning to tell upon that country. But everything is now disorganized, paralyzed and put to confusion.

Henry M. Stanley explored the province of Manyema, on the river Lualaba, and surrounding region, in 1877. It then contained 5,000,000 inhabitants, occupying an area of 1000 by 300 miles. Six years later he returned, but the villages had disappeared and the only evidence of life was the tents of the slave traders, with their chained victims—the most mournful sight the human eye could gaze upon. The Koran permits slavery, and half a million each year are ruthlessly dragged to bondage, and when it is remembered that three perish for every one that reaches the slave market alive it can easily be seen that the depopulation of Africa is going on at a most destructive rate. It has been estimated that at this rate in half a century the aborigines of Central Africa will become annihilated and the country a scene of desolate waste.

Civilized Europe is aroused at the unholy picture thus presented. A defense fund has been energetically started in Scotland, and anti-slavery societies are being established throughout Germany, France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, England and other countries of Europe. Large sums of money are pouring into their treasuries, Pope Leo XIII having headed the subscription lists with a donation of 300,000 francs. The German reichstag has adopted an anti-slavery policy and is co-operating with England in a blockade of the Zanzibar coast. This is good as far as it goes, but the real evil lies in the heart of the country, and to achieve the desired result both England and Germany, who have large interests in Africa, must strike for the interior and deal the death blow to the most gigantic international evil of modern times.

Professor Drummond in Scribner's Magazine asks: "What will America do to help? She has never been provincial. She must not become so. So manifold and pressing are now the interests of her own great country that she might also be pardoned if she did. But the world will be bewildered and disappointed if she separates herself now from the rest of mankind in facing those great wrongs of humanity from which seas cannot divide her and which her poorer brethren in every part of Europe are giving themselves to relieve. America does well in refusing the entanglements of European politics. Let her be careful lest she isolate herself from its humanities." The United States has not been niggardly in her expenditures of blood and money toward the extermination of slavery, nor will the American people remain unmoved at the spectacle of the prevalence of the evil in any distant country.

MERELY RACE PREJUDICE.

Charles Dudley Warner in a recent discourse at the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., spoke on "the race question," and advised the Southern states to require for the exercise of the suffrage an educational qualification. The complaint against negro suffrage in the South, he said, was that in many localities its effect was to "put ignorance over intelligence." Mr. Warner said: "You are in an illogical position before the law. Now would you not gain more in rectification of your position than you would lose in other ways, by making suffrage depend upon an educational qualification? I do not mean gain partywise, but in political morals and general prosperity. Time would certainly be gained by this, and it is possible in this shifting world, in the growth of industries and in the flow of populations, that before the question of supremacy was again upon you foreign and industrial immigration would restore the race balance."

The Age Herald of Birmingham, Ala., publishes Mr. Warner's speech, but says his suggestion cannot be accepted in the South, because of the large number of illiterate whites.

So then it is not solely or chiefly because the negro is illiterate that he is denied in the South his constitutional right to vote. The number of illiterate whites is so large that no educational test for the suffrage could be enforced there. White ignorance may vote, but black ignorance may not. The objection therefore to negro suffrage in the South is not that it puts ignorance over intelligence. This is mere pretence and subterfuge. The real ground of the opposition is race prejudice.

THE OUTSIDE VIEW.

Economic questions are so interwoven with party politics in this country that all expressions of opinion on such questions are held under suspicion of partisan bias. A foreign view of such questions is therefore interesting. The annexed is taken from the Canadian Manufacturer:

> The manufacture of Bessemer steel ingots in the United States did not assume any large proportions until 1868, while that country was still suffering from the effects of the war of the rebellion, but in four years—in 1872—the production had increased from 8,500 tons to 120,000 tons as against 410,000 tons made in that year in Great Britain, but ten years later—in 1882—the production in the two countries was substantially the same, while in 1887 the production in the United States exceeded that of Great Britain by 1,[illegible]000 tons.
> Protection has wrought this marvelous advance in the iron and steel trades of the United States and has made that country the decided superior of Britain. If protection will do so much for the United States why would it not do as much for Canada? The natural advantages of Canada are certainly as great as those of our neighbors and a persistent determination to rise to the same plane will elevate her to it.

QUESTIONS TO SETTLE.

A writer alluding to the great changes wrought in human affairs by the discoveries made in steam and electricity and the uses to which these agencies of force are now applied practically annihilating time and space says:

> A few hundred years ago people in different countries were almost as great strangers to each other as if they lived in a different world. Separation even by a few hundred miles made it impossible to have a community of interests. But now electricity and steam have brought all mankind so close together that we cannot but take an intimate interest in all our fellow beings. There are now problems social and economic have come up for solution.
>
> These great problems have been aptly collated by an exchange as follows:
>
> The tenure of land, the law of interest, the distribution of wealth, the relations of labor and capital, the transportation system, the means of communication, the sources from which have developed our overwhelming social problem. All these have been revised and reconstructed time and again from age to age, and all experiments have been failures; they are to be revised again and all are subjects for the concentrated and earnest thought of all people.
>
> The growing inequality, the vast accumulation of wealth and the wide-spread poverty, the oppression of the many by the few, the stress of competition, the steady and irresistible fall in prices, the monopolization of vast fields of labor by speculative capitalists, condemning the industry formerly occupying them to starvation and idleness—all these evils demand the most serious consideration at the hands of the people, who alone are capable of providing a remedy and snatching the nation from the hydra wealth and selfishness which is crushing the life out of it and making it a prey.
> Let every organization begin a regular study and discussion of these most startling questions, and as rapidly as possible obtain a full appreciation of the terrible conditions so that all may act in harmony and provide a means of relief.

As to the tenure of land and the distribution of wealth, nothing of modern discovery can materially change the relations of individuals to land tenures, though modern enterprise and invention are calculated to modify in some degree the laws of trade and even the usages of society, but the principle of right remains unchanged if there may be some modification of their application to suit a new order of things. There must and will be modification and revision of the relations of land and capital in various forms to labor to protect it from the encroachment that time naturally effects.

The great question of our day relates to the division of wealth and the protection of labor. As means of acquiring wealth increase, the necessity arises to protect labor from the combinations and monopolies that so often control the staples of life. Even land is bought under false pretenses and owned by capital in great bodies, while the public domain should be held in trust as homes for the people of the future. The last paragraph quoted goes to the root of the matter when it urges labor organizations to begin a regular study of all the economic questions that now startle the laboring world and act in harmony to provide means of relief.

Conditions of a political nature in America confer all necessary rights and privileges on labor, for by our constitutions and laws every voter is sovereign. If the majority are laborers and all who labor will act in unison, the ballot-box can rectify many evils. The majority of voters belong to the laboring classes and their votes can control legislation and direct the government, if the voters can act in harmony and work with judgment. Labor is the fabled giant that only needs to stretch his limbs to snap the fetters that bind him.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE NAVY.

Secretary Tracy of the navy bureau has shown during his brief term of office great executive ability and the country is likely to witness, during his administration, substantial progress toward an efficient navy. The plan of the government, allowing a bonus of $50,000 for every quarter knot made by the ship in excess of the contract speed, and a deduction of a like amount whenever the speed falls below that agreed upon, is conducive to good results. But the main point wherein the secretary shows thorough business sense, is in equalizing the conditions of the speed and turning trials of new vessels. There is a difference between a government test that is to form the basis of an official record and a mere contractor's trial for acceptance. Under certain conditions it is quite possible for an inferior vessel to make a better record than one greatly its superior. The quality of coal, expertness of stokers and condition of the sea each has its bearing upon the development of speed, but the secretary applies to all vessels constructed under contract for the government the same test by applying substantially the same comparative scientific conditions. It can readily be observed that this is fair and just both to the government and to the builder. It has been urged against the system of granting premiums that the government is likely to be imposed on, by ship builders who will secure contracts upon low conditions and secure prices largely in excess of actual value by building better ships than the contract calls for. But four cases are before the public. The Charleston, Petrel and Baltimore failed to fulfil their contract speed, but the Yorktown surpassed the horse power for which her builder contracted. There will be no fear that contracts will be let upon too low a standard or that ship builders will wax rich on premiums. The government can well afford to pay richly for the best ships that can be built, and if better work is to result from premium offering let the system be continued. If in addition the secretary will interest himself in the improvement of our merchant marine he will have achieved a great thing toward national welfare.

NEW VARIETIES OF WHEAT.

The importance of good seed of suitable varieties of wheat for planting to get the best returns as well as the best quality of grain for the use of wheat growers must be apparent to any one who is interested in production. The old Hudson bay white winter wheat that was introduced here by the Hudson's Bay Company in the early days when it encouraged wheat production to fill its contracts with the Russian colonies at the North proved to be excellent and especially adapted to the needs of this region. It has never been entirely superseded though various other winter wheats have been tried with more or less success. It is claimed that seed loses its excellence with continuous planting, but there is no charge made that the old favorite white winter wheat has lost its excellence, though half a century has passed since it was first introduced. While it is not supposed that this wheat has deteriorated with us, occasionally there have been new efforts made to test the excellence of other wheats and prove their value. As years pass by wheat production becomes of less importance to Western Oregon, and becomes more and more important as the prime staple of production east of the Cascades, for the time is at hand when the wheat crop of the Inland states will exert a decided influence on the markets of the Old World. From a grazing region the inland empire has developed capacity to produce wheat on an immense scale, and very naturally there are enterprising people there who are disposed to test the question of seed wheats thoroughly and introduce, if possible, the best wheats known that shall prove suitable to their region. A recent issue of the Walla Walla Statesman has the following that shows the progress made in the direction of securing good seed wheats for the upper country:

> For some time past it has been well known that Mr. William H. Reed of Reed & Co. was deeply interested in ascertaining the very best that could be done in the matter of wheat raising in the Walla Walla valley. Some two years ago he began a system of experiments in order to find what he considered to be the best and most economical wheat for our farmers to raise. His experiments have been carried on in a systematic manner and he has kept a record of the results. Yesterday he showed the Statesman representative fifteen varieties from this year's yield from seed which he had obtained from different portions of the country. He has many new varieties that have not yet been raised by the farmers here at all. The growth of each variety has been carefully watched and all peculiarities carefully noted and recorded. It is a well known fact that this has been a year that will give any variety of wheat a pretty severe test. He has some high bred varieties and also one of his own crossing between the blue stem and club. The showing of the latter has been excellent, outdoing any that he has tried. This was sowed last fall upon ground that had produced wheat last year. The crop from this is very large, and where almost every other wheat that has been sown under like circumstances has fallen short in yield and has withered, this proved to ripen early and the kernels are so well filled that their coat has actually been broken. He also sowed a bushel each of red chaff and blue stem side by side, from which he found that the latter stood the drouth much the better. A variety known as the trap, the seed of which came from South America, gave an excellent yield and stood very straight, but its disadvantage is in being a late wheat. The earliest ripening wheat that he has found is the quartz, this head being filled before the drouth came on. This of course is a strong point in favor of this brand of wheat, as it will escape the hot winds which come later.
>
> In order that he might ascertain the true condition of his question he has sent to the celebrated Vilmorin of Paris, who is the most noted scientific wheat grower in the world, for eleven brands, seven of which were specified and four to be sent by him being those which are best adapted to the condition of our soil, climate, etc. In order that Vilmorin might be the better judge a box of soil was sent him for analysis, also complete weather reports, etc. These samples have not arrived yet, but they will be given a thorough test next year by Mr. Reed and the results made known. From such steps as these it will soon be known as to what will be the rank of these several brands, so the wheat growers can plant to the greatest advantage.

* * *

An Eastern farm journal that has a wide circulation advocates the loaning of government funds on the farming lands of the nation. The idea is simply ridiculous. The same paper quotes the fact that state educational funds are so loaned. That is and has been done in Oregon, but the experience of our state is no inducement for extending the loans indiscriminately. Many losses have occurred from the loose way money has been handled, loaned to favorites or for personal reasons. But a state often has money that must earn an income and such money must be loaned to the best advantage. For the national government promiscuously to loan the people's money to Tom, Dick and Harry would be an incentive to corruption and dangerous to public morals and personal honesty. For any journal to deliberately advocate such a system shows a want of sense if not worse. As it is there are temptations scattered through public and private life that undermines character too often. To use thus the hundreds of millions of public money and public credit would debauch the credit of half the farmers of the country and to cause thousands of men who wish to own the earth to borrow money at low interest so they can buy more land. Favoritism and politics would be ruling principles and the result be lamentable in every particular.

COMPARISON OF WAGES.

The great mass of Americans do not approve of the ideas of Henry George, by which he proposes to abolish poverty, but his sincerity is not questioned and he has the faculty of telling truth that is not altogether pleasing to his free trade friends. In his speech in New York responding to the welcome of those gathered to greet him he said: "The average condition of the working people in this country is better than in any other part of the world." This in face of the fact that he had just returned from an extensive tour among the workingmen of England.

We have a very excellent opportunity to prove that actual statistics will support the statement made by Henry George. The bureau of labor and industrial statistics of Wisconsin has published a table which shows the comparative purchasing power in quantities of wheat bread, meat or butter of the wages received for ten hours labor in certain European countries and in that state. The wages given are for skilled blacksmiths and all are reduced to the standard of one pound sixteen ounces avoirdupois. It appears from this statement that the Wisconsin blacksmith can buy with one day's earnings forty pounds of wheaten bread or fourteen pounds of meat or sixteen pounds of pork or ten pounds of butter. His fellow craftsmen in Germany could buy with his wages only thirty pounds of bread, five and a half pounds of meat, five pounds of pork or three and a half pounds of butter. The Swedish blacksmith could buy only thirteen and a fourth pounds of bread, seven and a three fourths pounds of meat, five and a half pounds of pork, or two and a half pounds of butter; the Italian could buy a little more bread than the Swedish, but considerably less of the other commodities. In Great Britain the blacksmith can buy only nine pounds of meat, eleven of pork or five and a half of butter, as compared with the fourteen pounds of meat, sixteen of pork and ten of butter which represent the equivalent in food of the wages of his more fortunate American brother.

In no instance has the foreign workman an advantage. The American workman can buy more of the absolute necessaries of life than can the laborers of Holland, England, France, Belgium, Denmark or Italy. It is suggested that the native workmen bear these facts in mind when the free trade orators seek to prove that protection fights the prosperity of the nation.

The report of Wallace R. Struble, secretary of the Oregon immigration board for the month of July reveals a work the extent and value of [illegible] In every item the first six months of 1889 shows a decided advance over the record of the preceding year. The number of letters received at the office of the board was 11,000; the number of visitors in the rooms for March was [illegible], for April 603, and for July [illegible], the latter being an increase of [illegible] over the month of July 1888, while [illegible] pieces of printed matter were sent abroad during the month of July alone. It is the opinion of the secretary that immigration during the year 1889 is likely to reach the number of 100,000. We are inclined to regard this estimate as somewhat excessive, but there is no doubt of the fact that thousands of desirable settlers have arrived and are still coming to the state, and there is no doubt also regarding the great service rendered to the state by the board of immigration. The money used in promoting the work of inducing immigration is money most judiciously expended, and it would be an excellent idea to place even more funds at the disposal of the board.

Senator Voorhees in his recent speech at Bloomfield, Ind., made some statements that will not stand the tests of investigation. He said that the American is compelled to pay for carpets from 49 to 67 per cent more than they are worth and that the clothing worn cost twice as much as it would have done twenty five years ago. The speaker evidently paid his hearers the poor compliment of presuming upon their ignorance, for in his instance the democratic demagogue is not sustained by the actual facts. Carpets of equal quality are sold as cheap here as in England, and ready made clothing can be bought in the United States as cheap as in any other country in the world and at half the cost of even twenty years ago. The utter foolishness of the speech of Voorhees is proved by the action of the democratic press, which only ventured to print reports of the speech from which some of the unfortunate statements had been expunged.

The death of Arthur Warner of Clackamas county closed the life of an upright and honest man who had been a citizen of Oregon for more than a third of a century. The passing on of men who for more than a generation have played an active part in our civilization brings home with startling distinctness the fact that early Oregon will soon pass from the realm of memory, made real by the personal experiences of living witnesses, to become a history, the placid pages of which will deal with events rather than with the men and women who had part in them. Oregon City was the center of early territorial civilization and most of those who bore an honored part therein sleep in the cemetery on the hill above the city. The names on the slabs and monuments that mark the places of their eternal rest are suggestive of lives of earnest, honorable endeavor and of the success that waits upon it.

Eben S. Allen, the defaulting ex-president of a street railroad in New York city, confessed having over issued $500,000 stock and yesterday was sentenced to a term of fourteen years imprisonment at hard labor. The case is worthy of special note from the fact of the rapidity with which justice was meted out to the evil doer. His crime was only discovered about a week ago. The only redeeming feature in the case is that the man confessed and saved the county the expense of what would no doubt have been a long and tedious trial. As usual the criminal thought of wife and family when it was too late. A few cases as quickly dealt with as this one will have a tendency to lessen crime of this peculiarly shocking nature.

THE OREGONIAN has given the fruit growers of this region all the information they have any use for concerning the codling moth, and there is no other insect that is really dangerous or destructive. The common aphis comes and goes, and so does the wooly aphis, but the codling moth goes on forever. The use of London purple will make away with its worms and the next important matter to consider is the fungus growth that is so damaging to apples and pears. The University of California found spraying with sulphide of soda effective in very bad cases, and that or some other remedy must be called in to preserve the good looks and protect the good flavor of our apples and pears. There will be nothing more to say or do now, but towards spring it will be advisable to commence a war on the fungus.

Judge Field has been arrested, but all who possess the least knowledge of law are aware that this is a mere matter of form; the judge has committed no crime, except it be crime to have been assaulted by a desperado. There could not have been the shadow of complicity between the judge and deputy marshal, as the latter was not under orders from the former, but from the department of national justice at Washington, nor did the judge at the time of the assault request protection from the marshal.

TO-DAY

"And Monday" we will offer the following goods at reduced prices: Lace Curtains, Table Linens, Towels, Napkins, Bed Comforters, Blankets and Bedspreads.

McALLEN & McDONNELL,
161 and 163 Third st., cor. Morrison.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

A handsome five-room cottage, with basement, worth $2500. The nicest little house in Oregon. Built by days' work. We have refused $25 a month rent for this beautiful house and have finally concluded that we will give it away to one of the purchasers of one of our large lots in the Third Electric addition to East Portland. Twenty of these lots are 124 feet front by 145 feet deep, and sixty of them are 80 feet front by 227½ feet deep. These lots are all being nicely cleared, the title to them is perfect, and the price is the lowest of any lots now on the market, only $300 each, $100 cash, balance in monthly installments of $10 each without interest. They are nearly as large as four full sized city lots.

The cottage is given away to one of the lot owners. As there are only eighty lots to be sold each purchaser has one chance in eighty of securing the cottage. The purchaser of each lot will be given a ticket for the drawing of the cottage, which will take place at the rooms of the Real Estate Exchange on Tuesday, October 1, 1889, the managers of the drawing to be selected by the lot owners. A warranty deed for the cottage and lot (50 by 112 feet), free of all incumbrances, will be made by the Portland Real Estate Company to the one drawing the lucky number.

This is no lottery scheme. The lots we offer are better worth the money we ask for them than any lots on the market. They are near the Waverly Woodstock Electric Motor line, the contract for which is signed, and which is to be completed about December 15 of this year. The fare on this road is to be 5 cents to and from the city of Portland. The cottage is now completed, and is subject to your examination. If you will call at our office we will take you to see the lots and the cottage.

Non-residents wishing to purchase any of these lots can send draft payable to our order for $100, and we will select a lot for them. As the lots are all level, and about 150 feet higher than the floor of the Morrison street bridge, there is but little choice except between corners and inside lots. Sale of lots will commence on Monday, September 2, 1889.

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

YOUNG WOOL THIEVES —Two lads named C B Irvin and R P Schrader were arrested by Officer Barry yesterday afternoon on a charge of stealing some wool from the steamship dock. Mr Williams, the superintendent of the dock, noticed some days ago that a window opening into the freight shed on the end where the wool is stored, was broken in. On making an investigation, he found that one small sack, and a portion of a large sack of wool were stolen. The theft was communicated to Officer Barry. It was ascertained that four boys had sold some to Koshland Bros., and with this clue the boys were apprehended Two of the boys are implicated in the theft The two more young prisoners admit that they sold the wool, but they claim to have bought it from a Columbia slough farmer

Y M C. A. GYMNASIUM —The gymnasium rooms of the Y. M. C A are about to be reopened under the management of E. W McCaslin, a professional instructor who for a number of years has had charge of the Y M C A rooms at Chicago. The rooms are being overhauled, the machinery is being repaired and a number of new gymnastic appliances will be put in to make the gymnasium complete in all its appointments. Classes will be formed for active work as soon as all improvements are completed. Mr McCaslin comes well recommended as an experienced instructor, and there is no reason to doubt that the gymnasium will be largely patronized and be come once more the useful institution it once was.

LONG HAUL AND SHORT HAUL.—An English mechanic who is a recent arrival in this city, has come to an understanding regarding the meaning of a long and short haul clause as applied to freightage and transportation He had his tool chest weighing perhaps 200 pounds, shipped from Liverpool, England, to Portland The freight charges was $1 50 This is the long haul Here in Portland he hired an expressman to take his tool chest across the river to East Portland. The expressman charged him $1 25, and he has come to the conclusion that this is the short haul. In commenting upon the justice of these charges he has nothing but "damm' to say, when he refers to the short haul clause

WHY THE DELAY IN REBUILDING"—The Portland bath house is in a sad state of dilapidation. The collision with the steamer Three Sisters left it a bad wreck, and for some reason the work of reconstruction has not yet been commenced. It looks much as if it had been borne down upon by a battering ram The entire north east corner, where the greatest damage was done is submerged in the water The corner tank is smashed into smithereens and several others were damaged by the jar of the collision Each wave washing up against it causes a squeak and if it is not repaired soon it will become a total wreck through gradual disintegration.

ACCIDENT TO A 'LONGSHOREMAN —John Hayman, a longshoreman working on board the English ship Tillie E. Starbuck, at the O C dock met with a serious fall about half past 3 o clock yesterday afternoon Hayman was engaged in fixing some of the rigging between decks when he missed his footing and fell to the lower hold, a distance of about twelve feet. He was unconscious for a few moments after the fall, but soon recovered and was then conveyed to his home on I street, between Eighth and Ninth. The exact extent of his injuries could not be ascertained, but it is believed that he was hurt internally No bones were broken.

JAPANESE AERIAL EXHIBITION — Professor Charles A. Doyle will give his free Japanese aerial exhibition at the Riverside race course to-morrow afternoon Owing to the absence of any breeze, the exhibition given at City View park last Sunday was not an entire success and Professor Doyle is desirous of showing the exhibition at its best. The aerial display of fantastic Japanese figures is something entirely new on this coast. Besides this exhibition there will be a race between J Taylor champion long distance runner of the coast and an unknown, and other features to be decided on later

THE STAGE ROBBERS HELD TO ANSWER.—The accused Bonanza stage robbers, Samuel Walker and James Dodd, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Paul R Deady at half past 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Although four witnesses living in the vicinity of Bonanza were subpenaed, their testimony was not needed for the prisoners waived examination Commissioner Deady fixed the bail at $5000 which practically amounts to holding them without bail They were not able to get bondsmen to this amount and in default were committed to the county jail

THE LAST DAY —The tax payers of Multnomah county should remember that this is the last day on which the assessor will receive statements of their property After 5 o clock P M the door of the assessor s office will be locked to give the assessor and his assistants time to have the roll ready for the board of equalization which will meet at the office of the county clerk on Monday August 26 Tax payers should hurry up and bring in their statements to-day and by doing so will avoid mistakes and save trouble for themselves and the assessor

BENSE IS STILL ALIVE Fred Bense, the Kelso fisher, who attempted suicide by cutting the back of his neck with a butcher knife, is still alive though in a very precarious condition He is perfectly rational, and apparently realizes his situation The physicians will not allow him to speak, as a little excitement is liable to lead to fatal results The wound is so large and so deep that there is just a bare possibility of his recovery should a change for the worse take place, it will reveal itself either to-day or to-morrow

GROSS IS KNOWN IN WALLULA —A gentleman writing from Arlington states that the name of the man who shot John Miller in the eye is Ernest Gross, and not Cross as has heretofore been reported. Gross, he says is well known in Wallula, where he tended bar On one occasion Cross drew a gun on a drunken man but was prevented from using it by the bystanders He was arrested there for robbing his employer of money and some silver spoons, but finally got clear and left for Portland.

VERY LARGE GOOSEBERRIES —Six mammoth gooseberries, preserved in a small glass jar have been sent to this office as a sample of what Oregon soil and climate can produce in the berry line These berries were raised by Mr J A Richards who lives five miles east of Mehama near the line of the Oregon Pacific railroad The fruit has attained a very large size—about half the size of an ordinary hen s egg The jar and contents will be donated to the board of immigration

CRUSHED BY A ROCK —News of a fatal accident has been received here from Vancouver Thursday, Andrew Starr one of the men employed at Hinkle s quarry was instantly killed by a large stone falling on him By some means a rock became loose near the top of the cliff, and slid down upon the unfortunate man Death was instantaneous. Starr s body was very badly mangled The body was removed to Vancouver No inquest was held over the remains

NOT VERY PARTICULAR —No prices were mentioned in J Selling & Co s parasol sale as they don t care what they bring Besides these the following attractions are offered to-day Balance of summer shawls at cost or talk 100 dozen wire buckle suspenders (new style) a lot of fancy lace pins Parisian diamond hair pins at 5 cents balance of men s summer underwear, six dozen stylish men s suits just received and a fine assortment of ladies hosiery

EXHIBIT OF OREGON PRODUCTS

A Splendid Collection of Fruits, Grains, Grasses, Etc , That Are To Be Sent East to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Soon

Professor McElroy, who has been at work for months working up an interest in this state to secure a good exhibit of all the products as well as of its various resources has not succeeded as well as he hoped and had reason to expect at one time but will be able to give the crowds to assemble soon at Milwaukee at the Grand Army encampment for 1889, an idea of what Oregon can produce and what its immense resources are

The following list comprises what was collected at Salem by the Oregon Land Company, a real estate concern that has done a large business in city and farm lands at and near Salem and has shown great enterprise and uncommon liberality in all that tended to advance Oregon interests in general, and in this effort of Professor McElroy in particular They will expend more of their own money to make this exhibit, than will be spent from all other sources and to them it is chiefly due that it has the value it really possesses, for it is probably the best exhibit of the kind ever made

It was not easy to get a good assortment of fruits to represent Oregon at this season because those that are ripe would hardly keep through the month, and late fruits would not ripen if picked now Professor McElroy however will have several hundred boxes of choice prunes, pears, etc. that will be used for general distribution These include 100 boxes of the magnificent Hungarian prune from the Clarke orchard near Salem, and Italians furnished by Wm Gilman, of Polk county, and will afford a taste from the orchards of the state

WHAT THE LIST CONTAINS

The following list gives a general idea of the character of the collection in general Oregon s exhibit at the national encampment prepared by the Oregon Land Company of Salem to be held at Milwaukee Wis beginning August 27 Following is a list of some of the samples

Fruits (put up in glass jars) —Yellow egg plum peach plum Columbia plum Washington plum Italian prune, Hungarian prune, silver prune German prune Bartlett pear sickle pear winter Nelis pound pear, gooseberry strawberry, blackberry, huckleberry raspberry currants, cherries peaches nectarines apples, apricots quinces, grapes

Grain—Twenty seven different specimes and 22 single bunches of wheat grown from one grain from 44 to 100 each, consisting of 680 bunches

Large sunflowers Irish potato vine 8 feet high sweet clover onion, 16 stalks from 1 seed from the garden of O Dickinson tobacco plants, mistletoe hazel brush 5 to 6 inches in diameter every kind of vegetable elder brush 28 inches in diameter this year s growth 20 feet high.

Native grass, 40 different kinds, consisting of 156 bunches timothy 90 bunches running from 4 to 6½ feet high, clover 25 bunches.

And have had printed 20 000 folders 20 000 pamphlets and 20,000 fancy cards they have had put up 10 000 small sacks of wheat barley and oats taken in bulk and given away and many other magnificent specimens

There is also a splendid exhibit from Linn Lane Polk and Benton counties furnished by parties from those counties that cannot be enumerated but comprise a great variety of the finest specimens grown in those counties of their agricultural and horticultural products

WADDELL HELD TO ANSWER

He Is Charged With Obstructing the United States Mail William Cain, Co defendant, Discharged

Arthur Waddell and William Cain were arraigned before United States Commissioner Woodward yesterday morning on a charge of obstructing the United States mails From the evidence adduced at the examination the facts of the case are about as follows

Last Tuesday afternoon at about 5 o clock as the Oregonian railway passenger train which was carrying the mail passed the little station of Armstrong in Yamhill county a spark falling from the locomotive set fire to a fence on the land of young Waddell s father The fence inclosed a [illegible] field and as soon as the fire was noticed a party of men went out with wet blankets to extinguish the flames The fence was close to the railroad track and some of the rails were thrown upon it for want of a better place.

When the fire was finally extinguished the hour was late and Mr Waddell said he would come out early in the morning to take away the rails About 10 o clock he heard a hand car coming down the track, and soon heard it stop The men who were on it took the rails off the track and then went on About 5 o clock the next morning he went out and saw two rails still on the track It was evident that they were placed there after the hand car passed by The rails were left and when the morning mail train came back it stopped, and the engineer sent his man out to remove the rails Young Arthur Waddell was there with Mr Cain the co-defendant, but neither had anything to say as to how the obstruction came there

The manager of the road hearing of the obstruction, sent Marshal Swan out to investigate the matter Suspicion pointed to young Waddell who afterwards admitted having placed the rails on the track, in company with another man

Commissioner Woodward held young Waddell to answer in the sum of $500 bonds and dismissed the charge against Cain

A POET'S VIEW OF PORTLAND

Joaquin Miller Tells About the City on the Willamette.

Railroads and Natural Scenery—Continued Building—The New Hotel—Excellent Cooking—Moral Aspect of the City.

New York Independent.

Building! building! building! The roar and the rattle of hammer and trowel here is like the roar and the rattle of the sea on a pebble-sown shingle.

And yet travelers whom I meet here in the hotel, returning from Tacoma and Seattle, tell me that it does not compare with the snap and crash and roar of progress in either of these new-born towns. But I shall not quite believe that till "I see with mine own eyes and hear with mine own ears."

I came down the great Willamette valley in a half day by rail from Eugene City, "the heart of Oregon," the place of my last letter. And I came down through one continuous and uninterrupted Eden. Three railroads run down this valley, which is more than 100 miles long and about fifty wide; and two railroads cross it, or are crossing it. There is a tremendous building impulse already here, both in city and country. Little towns blossom all along on either hand; and many a one of these sudden-born little towns is destined to serve merely as stations for accommodation trains for many years to come. Still, they all have fine stone houses, and from one to a dozen pretty church spires pointing heavenward through the "continuous woods."

The green woods! Oh, these glorious, restful green woods and green valleys and green hills after the glare of the fervid California sun! This is surely the most restful land the traveler ever saw. The eyes rest, the soul and body rest; for beauty and prosperity possess the land look where you may.

But this city of Portland, cut in two by the Willamette river and spanned by two iron bridges, is not very beautiful. Take out the roar and rush of it, and then quietly sit down and contemplate the dirty streets with their confusion of brick and mortar and lumber piles, and it would be ugly enough. However, as it is, the imagination leaps forward and lays lumber and brick and mortar in shapely line and order, and we see the city, not as it is, but as it is to be.

Oregon City, a dozen miles up the river at the great falls, is still on the map. You may remember it as the first city in all this vast West. It was the center of a great system of fur trade. And then it was the first capital of Oregon. It is still a sweet, pleasant place; but it is, after all, and after a half a century of hope and abundant promise, only a station on the railroad.

And this Oregon City will serve to illustrate what I continually try to point out as the ultimate result of all this tumultuous and tremendous building of new towns up and down the ends of the earth on this side of the Rocky mountains.

Salem, the capital of Oregon at present, is prosperous, very prosperous, and very, very pretty. One thing about these Oregon towns that makes them more than ordinarily beautiful is their abundant greens. You nearly always see two rows of trees on each street. Often some of the streets in the best ordered of these young towns have four rows of trees, as on the broad avenues of Washington city.

Another notable feature all up and down this continuous line of restful towns is the school-house and the church edifice. At some places you do not see more than about six houses; but one at least, and the biggest and the best, is a school-house; and perhaps two of the remaining five buildings are churches. But you do not often find a town so small as that; unless it be only of this year's crop of newly planted towns.

Portland is built, or rather she is building on a series of shelves. Shelf rises above shelf till you get high up in the primal black fir forest.

On the eastern side of the deep, clear river, that slides between the two halves of the town under its iron bridges, these black and sullen forests climb and climb and climb till they touch the eternal snows of Mount Hood.

On the western side of the river—and here the city first stood entirely alone and quite forgetful of the eastern side for a quarter of a century—the streets climb and cross in wooded terrace till high in the air. Here under the maple trees is the fashionable afternoon drive. Wealth and fashion are here, the same as in Central park, New York. The equipages are quite as fine as those of New York. The horses are a good deal finer than are those of Hyde park, London. The ladies are better looking than are those of Paris, and to the inexperienced eye of an humble poet they are as entirely well dressed.

Statistics, at home, anywhere in this age of advertising, can show you numerous things in the story of this town's advancement, and I will not dwell on the number of banks and other substantial signs of solid advance. But the new hotel building deserves especial mention, for it is so new that its mention is not yet public.

This new hotel stands almost in the center of Portland as I knew her twenty years ago. You count about ten stories as you look up from the river. From the high maple-set shelves or streets above the hotel you count about five rows of windows or stories. The first few stories on the lower side are of solid stone, then the masonry is brick on the corners and stucco for the body. It looks light and airy with its many spires and turrets and pinnacles; but it is a larger and a loftier edifice than is that massive and tremendous pile of brick known as "The Great Northwestern Hotel." Indeed, I do not care to mention the cost of this hotel, as the figures furnished me tax my credulity; nor shall I find time to give further details here. I can say this much, however, I was astonished at the size and delighted with the shapely splendor of this edifice. For in this same city of Portland I have encountered in past years the vilest hotels and the worst cooking that ever drove a man to suicide. And as I did not hesitate to say as much at the time in this same Independent, it is but fair that I now not only mention this new hotel, to be completed in a few months, but also to mention that I now find the cooking in Portland quite on a par with that of San Francisco; and that is saying all that could well be said in favor of Portland in this direction. But how I did get pounded by the press here for telling the truth ten years ago!

And I might stop here and speculate as to how much of this reform is due to the man who accepts no favors and asks no mercy, but I will not. Enough to know that "Portland on the Willamette" has laid aside her swaddling clothes and stands up tall and fair in the array and in the race of comely cities.

I think the moral aspect of the city is only moderately good. This may come from the contact with the sea and the flow of bad characters to and from the rivers. At all events the moss is not permitted to grow on the jail doors of Portland by a good deal, as has been the case at Salem and other interior towns of peaceful and pastoral Oregon.

I find more Chinese here than in any other city I ever saw this side "the Flowery Kingdom." They are of course all at work. In every street and on every block you see them splitting wood as you pass up and down. The Chinese have almost an entire street here all their own, and it is in a very active and prosperous part of the city. These people receive more consideration here at the hands of the Christians than from the heathen from Ireland in San Francisco.

Yesterday I saw a singular spectacle; three Chinese preachers, in full Chinese dress, stood out in the middle of the street and preached and sang to their countrymen as they plied their various trades and sold their various wares to passing customers.

The Chinese preachers had Bibles and hymn books in their hands, translated into the Chinese tongue of course, and from these they read and sang. So far as I could find out they were itinerant Methodist preachers. I had no time to wait till the conclusion of the service, and to my regret when I got back the good men were gone. Inquiry could get no satisfactory answer as to what denomination they belonged to or who paid them for their work. The two Chinese brothers, who insisted on my tasting a cut of their roast pig, did not respond at all to my inquiry after the preachers, and so I have only the bare fact to set down, three Chinese Christians are singing hymns and preaching and reading the Bible in the busy city of Portland, Oregon.

Electioneering in Mississippi.

Jackson Mississippian.

Colonel Stone got off a pretty good thing on a delegate from one of the rural counties to the state convention, whom he met there for the first time. The colonel said: "I am glad to meet you. I have known your father for many years; but never had the pleasure of your acquaintance. I see that the son, however, is better looking than the father."

"Look here, colonel," said the delegate, "you need not be flattering me up, for I am out and out for Barksdale for governor, although the old man is for you."

"Why, I simply find you better looking than your father, but I did not say you had half as much sense as he has," returned the colonel.

Those standing around roared with laughter, in which the delegate good-humoredly joined.

IS THE REPUBLIC UNGRATEFUL.

Albany Times.

Cassius M. Clay, the veteran abolition agitator of Kentucky, an agitator at a time when he had to carry a pistol with him to enforce his right to speak, has a complaint to make against the present administration, which is put in the vigorous language that Mr. Clay so well knows how to use. He says:

> I made in my life eleven presidential campaigns, mostly at my own expense; saw six men of my choice in the presidential chair; but never asked an office for myself or for my blood, but for Green Clay (Brutus's son) as secretary of the legation, which was a matter of course, and never got one. This time I did ask, but got nothing but the promise of a $3-storekeeper at a still-house for my son. In the meantime Bismarck, my compeer, who did not equal my standing at St. Petersburg, is made a prince, with large hereditary estates, and his son is premier of Germany. But let no man say that republics are ungrateful. Yes, I am "old," but my country pays me a pension of $85 a year.

It is pitiable to find so old and able a man as Cassius Clay a suppliant before a republican administration for anything, but it is more pitiable to find that administration refusing him or even hesitating over the grant of almost anything he would deem it necessary to ask. Cassius Clay, before the secession era, and during it and through the war, was a grand specimen of manhood. He was so intense in his love of liberty that he freed the slaves that had descended to him by inheritance, and he engaged (right in the old Bourbon blue grass region of Kentucky) in a vigorous and sharply aggressive warfare against slavery. He was above-board about it all the time. He engaged in no midnight conferences, ran no underground railways. "If you are property," he said to a negro runaway once, "then you shouldn't steal yourself away from your owner. But there will come a day when the world will say that you are not property."

In Louisville, in the campaign of Lincoln in 1860, he made several speeches for the republican ticket. When he was first advertised to appear there was great excitement. Had he been an agitator from a Northern state he would not have been allowed to set foot inside the city. The sullen rain-drops preceding the storm were already falling desultorily. Secession, disunion, war, were already threatened. The scorn that waited upon abolition was intensified. Even Greeley and Wendell Phillips and Thurlow Weed were beginning to question the wisdom of their own course. But Clay never swerved. He announced the time and place of his speech "in the east room of the court-house" by placards on the streets. The newspapers refused to accept his advertisements. Some hoped that he would not be interfered with. Some discreetly intimated that it would not do to offer him violence much as they might say, "Don't nail his ears to the pump." Prentice of the Louisville Journal boldly said that "Cassius Clay is a Kentuckian. He is a Clay. He is a man of brains and blood. He has a right to speak and should speak." But even the Journal hoped that he would say nothing incendiary.

The hour came and Cassius M. Clay spoke to a tremendous audience, in the center of which he could descry the set and resolute visages only of enemies. He laid out his documents and manuscript on his left and a seven-shooter on his right. "A citizen of Kentucky," he began, "asks of his fellows the right of free speech. His fellows can not deny it, the free state of Kentucky and the free municipality of Louisville, surely will not deny it, and," here he leaned far over the rostrum, and crossing both hands on his revolver, added, "nobody else in this room had better try to deny it." There was a slight attempt to deny it, however, a gang having formed for that purpose. In a pause of Mr. Clay's argument which was directed to laboring men to show that slave labor competed against them, the ringleaders of this gang opened operations by the set question all pre-arranged. "Mr. Clay, what did you do with your niggers?" Mr. Clay responded with the utmost suavity, "I set them free, sir." "No, you didn't," responded the other, "you put them in your pocket." "You're a liar," said Mr. Clay, "and you know it." This was not according to the programme, and the leader was unprepared. It was too sudden for him. It was the wrong cue. He looked disconcerted. Then a little thing happened, but a vital thing. The mob laughed. A mob that laughs at its leader has lost its usefulness. It has no further any sting. It is dangerous only to the leader. From the general laugh grew also that generous spirit which pervades even mobs. "Go on, Cash, go ahead!" and Mr. Clay finished his speech amid more applause than disapproval.

We regret very much that such a man wants anything from a republican administration and cannot get it.

A MOCK TRIAL ON THE SEAS

A Humorous Incident of the Trip on the Corona to Alaska.

A Passenger Tells a Curious Tale and is Compelled to Stand Trial—Found Guilty and Receives Heavy Sentence.

The steamer Corona returned to Tacoma Thursday evening, after her trip to Alaska, bringing a large number of delighted passengers, among whom were General Foster, ex-minister to Russia, and other distinguished persons. As is usual on such voyages, "fish stories" were abundant, which were received by the passengers with great relish, but one of them so far exceeded the others in extravagance that many of the other passengers, whether moved by jealousy because they had been beaten in this respect, by their fellows or not, is not quite clear, determined to bring the author of it to trial for having falsified the log of the ship, by causing, as was charged, to be entered thereon, that in the early morning, when most of the passengers were still in their berths, he had seen a whale 120 feet in length, and spouting 200 feet in hight. A court was duly organized by the selection of Calvin Frost, of New York, as judge, Frank D. Harmon, a lawyer of New York as clerk. Ex-Attorney-General Williams, of Kansas, was selected as prosecutor, and General Wager Swayne, of New York, was selected by the accused as his counsel.

The following is a copy of the indictment, subject to postponement if it looks like a shower:

ON BOARD ALASKA EXCURSION STEAMER CORONA.
Dominion of Canada on the High Seas
(But not so high as they will be to-morrow in Queen Charlotte sound).

Orphans' Court, No. 1.

Aug. 10, 1889, at 8 bells; second dog watch by the cat. The court will convene for the purpose of trying

COLONEL HORRY HANDED STANTON.

For the crime of falsifying the log of the steamship Corona, to wit:

That he sighted a whole whale, 120 feet long, and that it spouted 200 feet high—North latitude.

By order of Hon. J. FROST.

Prosecuting Attorney, GEN. GUS WILLIAMS.
Counsel for the Defence, GEN. BOAT SWAIN.
Countersigned, JAMES CARROLL, Bishop.
Attest, S. L. Y. HEEBNER, Constable.

Defendant pleaded "not guilty." A jury of seven ladies was empaneled to try the case. The witnesses were numerously sworn by Clerk Harmon to tell anything but the truth and they proceeded in large numbers to do so. Their testimony was ludicrous and contradictory, being examined and cross-examined with great ability, and at its close the counsel proceeded to sum up their speeches, abounding with brilliant wit and fine apt classical quotations, which were received with rapturous applause by the passengers, all of whom, without an exception, were assembled in the large dining cabin to hear the trial, as well as the captain and the ship's officers generally.

The judge then proceeded to charge the jury. He told them that it was the first time within his experience or knowledge that a jury of women had been empaneled to try a case in a court of justice, and that the high responsibility of demonstrating that their sex was qualified to discharge such an important duty rested on them; that the great objection to women as jurors was the fear that they would be influenced by their partiality to the counsel or parties on account of their good looks, and that they (the jurors) must therefore close their eyes to the personal attractions of counsel and prisoner, (the best made, although not an Adonis might well be mistaken for one), that justice was as always represented, in paintings and statuary, as blind. The jury was also told that as the tribunal was a novel one, the common law rule of requiring unanimity of the jurors to make a verdict would be dispensed with, and that a majority would be sufficient for the purpose. The jury was also told that the offense of falsifying the ship's log was a good one, involving the most serious consequences, and that they must therefore act with great caution, but decide without regard to the punishment, which might be inflicted. It is needless to say that the jurors listened to the evidence and charge with serious attention and without violation of the rules governing trials in courts of justice, except that during the giving of the evidence they commenced to talk with each other, which the judge promptly checked, telling them that an exchange of opinions among themselves was not proper until all of the testimony had been given and the counsel and court had been heard. This rebuke was received good naturedly, although with evident distaste at being deprived of the luxury of discussing the case as it proceeded.

When the case had been given to the jury a verdict was soon rendered, finding the prisoner guilty, the vote being five for conviction and two for acquittal, the last two having evidently disobeyed the charge of the court and looked upon the prisoner during the trial.

Upon the rendition of the verdict and its reading by Clerk Harmon, which was done in his most effective style, there were rounds of applause. General Simpson, not quite satisfied with the verdict, asked that the jury be called upon to answer each separately as to whether that was her verdict, which was done by the clerk, and each answered as before.

The prisoner was then called upon to stand up for sentence, which he did, and the judge passed it, that he drink no more spirituous liquor before 6 o'clock in the morning, during the trip, under penalty of being thrown overboard for a violation. As the prisoner had drank no liquor during the voyage, the sentence was universally opposed by the audience, and thus ended one of the most remarkable trials on record.

MOUNTAIN DENUDATION.

The Rivers and Lakes of Southern California Becoming Extinct as a Result.

Virginia City Chronicle.

The people of Southern California have become aroused to a realizing sense of the (to them) disastrous effects of denuding the sierras of timber. The leading ranchmen, farmers and fruit growers are preparing an immense memorial or petition to congress asking that the timber claim system be abolished. Kings river ten years ago was a very important river, and Tulare lake was a very extensive body of water. To-day the river is perfectly dry just below the mouth of the Fresno irrigation system, away up in the mountains, and Tulare lake has receded at least ten miles since 1879. There is less than three feet of water in the deepest part of the lake to-day.

Lake Elsinore, in San Diego county, was formerly the outlet and terminus of the San Jacinto river, but since the timber has been nearly all taken from the grand old San Jacinto mountain, the stream has become a thing of the past. There is no greater mistake in the world than allowing the timber to be cut from the mountains. Orchardists living in the region west of Tulare say that after July of each year there is no water whatever for irrigating purposes.

The people of the valley say: "It is absurd to talk about irrigation schemes and big reservoirs, when the government will not observe the laws of nature. The sale of timber land in California is a matter that means simply the satisfying of the rapacious craws of the government land thieves. There is no necessity for the cutting of timber from our mountains. There is plenty of timber in Alaska and the Puget sound region."

Stomach Aches

There is something at once touching in the contemplation of the universal confidence reposed in SANFORD'S GINGER. And justly so; no aching stomach or troubled bowel has ever called for relief in vain.

Sanford's Ginger

The unrivaled household panacea and traveling companion, is sure to check every disturbance of the stomach and bowels, instantly relieve cramps and pains, prevent indigestion, destroy disease germs in water drank, promote perspiration, restore the circulation when suspended by excessive heat or sudden chill,—a frequent cause of sunstroke and cholera morbus,—break up colds and fevers, promote sleep, allay nervousness, and ward off malarial, contagious and epidemic influences.

For the aged, mentally and physically overworked, nervous and weakly, it is most valuable. No household or traveler is safe at this season without it.

Compounded of imported ginger, choice aromatics, and the best of medicinal French brandy, SANFORD'S GINGER is vastly superior to all other gingers, costing the makers from two to five times that of any other, and selling but a few cents higher than the cheapest peddler's ginger. SUMMER RESORTS.

Banff Springs Hotel

ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

A perfectly constructed Summer and Winter Hotel, costing a quarter of a million dollars, situated on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, near the summit of the Rocky Mountains, in the Canadian National Park. The house is electric lighted and has every comfort and convenience found in city hotels of the highest grade. The numerous hot sulphur springs in close proximity vary in temperature from 80 to 121 degrees, and perfect bathing facilities are supplied. Testimony to the wonderful curative properties of the waters is plentiful. A first-class livery of driving and saddle horses forms part of the establishment, and there are excellent roads and walks in all directions built and maintained by the government. The house is 5000 feet above sea-level and is surrounded by magnificent mountain peaks 8000 to 8500 feet high. In grandeur of scenery and purity of atmosphere the region is immeasurably superior to any similar health resort on the continent. The hotel rates are from $3.50 a day upward, and special terms for longer time may be had by addressing W. L. MATHEWS, Manager, Banff, Alberta, Canada. ## MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The stock market was a little more active to-day, especially in the first and last hours, but between those hours the dullness was equal to anything seen of late. The improvement began by Atchison taking the lead and rising 1 per cent., followed by C., C., C. and St. Louis and Rock Island. While the upward movement spread to the entire list ½ per cent. was the limit of the gains made. The market then became dull, and so continued until the last hour, when Wabash preferred led the upward movement, and more animation was shown all over the list. The market finally closed dull, but firm to strong, and at the best period of the day.

Government bonds have been dull and steady.

MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Money on call, easy at 3@4. Prime mercantile paper, 4¾@6½. Sterling exchange, dull, steady; 60-day bills, $4 84½. Demand, $4 87¼.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Produce receipts past 24 hours included: Wheat, 19,000 ctls; flour, 5000 qr sks; oats, 1000 ctls; potatoes, 3000 sks; barley, 18,500 ctls.

Freights—The freight market continues very quiet, with no new business to report.

Wheat—The spot market has assumed a firmer feeling, owing to an improved export and speculative demand. No. 1 shipping $1 32½@1 35. Trading in options, slow, but prices rather better. Transactions were: 200 tons of No. 1 white, buyer year, at $1 41; 100 tons at $1 40¾; buyer season, $1 45¾. Afternoon session: Buyer year opened and closed at $1 40¾; buyer season, $1 45⅝; seller year, (new) $1 31½.

Barley—Liberal receipts and a poor demand cause the market to exhibit a dull and weak tone. Nominal quotations are 70c for choice feed, and 67½c for No. 1. Options are very dull; buyer season, 86c. Afternoon session: Buyer year, 84¼c.

Oats—The market rules quiet. Offerings are liberal, but buyers hold off, and trading continues slow. Choice feed, $1 17½; No. 1, $1 15; inferior grades, $1 05@1 10.

Millstuffs—The movement is quiet but prices keep steady. Bran of all kinds quoted from $14@15 50 per ton; middlings, $14 50@18.

Potatoes—The situation shows little change from last reports. Receipts are of moderate proportions, and a fair demand keeps prices from fluctuating.

Eggs—Market quiet. No change to be noted, either in demand or values.

Wool—Trading slow; prices unchanged.

Hops—Inactive.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Receipts of wheat at the seven primary points east of the Rocky mountains during the past 24 hours were 481,000 bushels, and the shipments from these points during the same time were 471,000 bushels.

Wheat—The market opened off, but soon gained strength, and advanced steadily until the close. Prices throughout the day ranged as follows: Opening, 77¼c August, 76¼c September, 77⅞c December, 81¾c May. Noon—78c August, 77⅜c September, 78½c December, 82⅜c May. Hogs—Receipts, 11,000; strong and 5 cents higher; mixed, $4@4 35; heavy, $3 80@4 05; light, $4 30@4 70.

Sheep — Receipts, 4000; strong; natives, $3 60@4 90; Westerns, $3 60@4 05; Texans, $3 70@4 10.

WOOL MARKETS.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Wool—There has been a moderate trade in all kinds of wool. The sales of the week were only 1,429,000 pounds. The market was unsettled and prices were easier. Territory wools are in fair demand, with sales of choice Montana at 24@25c, and Utah and Wyoming at 18@23c, as to quality. California, Oregon and Texas wools are quiet. Pulled wools are in fair demand at 25@28c for extra, and 23@29c for super.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Grain freights by steam to Liverpool from this port, rule firm at 4½d per bushel.

Wheat—The market opened generally a shade lower, but before noon prices began to advance, and closed firm. Fluctuations during the day were as follows: Opening 85⅝c August, 84⅜c September, 84¾c October, 87⅛ December. Noon—85¾c August, 84⅝c September, 85c October, 87⅜c December. The Lady

Who has fine Hair, and desires to preserve its color, abundance, and lustre, should use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean and cool, and is by far the most exquisite toilet preparation in the market.

B. M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo., says: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."

Mrs. S. A. Bock, of Anderson, Texas, writes: "At the age of 34, in Monroe, La., I had a severe attack of swamp, or malarial, fever. After I got well my hair commenced coming out, and so continued until it had well nigh all gone. I used several kinds of hair restorers, but they did no good. A friend gave me a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Before finishing the first bottle my hair began to grow, and by the time I used three bottles, I had a fine head of hair."

CAUGHT IN THE LEGAL TOILS

Held in $500 Bonds—The Case Was Dismissed—Several Warrants Issued

Mention was made in yesterday's paper of the arrest of H. M Russ, the dentist, on a charge of opening a sealed letter not his own but directed to Dr. J. H Hall The missive was written to Mrs H. M. Proles, and was unstamped. It had been left in Dr Hall's office by a messenger and Dr Russ entering the room saw it and opened it he claims in the belief that it was his. Dr Hall who is a physician, thought the dentist had a motive in so doing, and made the complaint The justice concluded his part of the medley by causing Dr Russ to furnish $500 bonds to appear before the grand jury.

DEFENDANT DISCHARGED

The case of F M Brown who was charged with stealing a horse from a Mr Hagenberger near Milwaukie, and selling the same to P McFntee, of this city, was dismissed as there was nothing to show that Brown ever stole a horse and the horse he sold was his own

WARRANTS ISSUED

Warrants have been issued from Phelan's court for the arrest of three Chinamen named Pon Sing, Ah Goon and Ah Louie charging them with having opium in their possession without having a license to do so The Chinamen disclaim having violated any law either state or municipal

A warrant has also been issued for D M Fields charging him with committing larceny by bailee. It is claimed by A G Corbett, the complaining witness, that about September 1, 1886, Fields stole a saddle, blanket, bridle, and other articles to the total value of $70, and that he had no right whatever to the same, but was simply holding them for the plaintiff When the latter called for them they were not furnished him

A warrant has been issued from Justice Tuttle's court for one Ah Ko, a Celestial He is charged with cruelty to an animal—a cow—by cutting the hamstrings, and thus crippling the poor creature for life. The cow is the property of Al Hunter

SHE LOST HER PURSE.

It Contained $100 in Bills—Probably It Was Stolen by Nimble Fingered Thieves.

Mrs. C. M. Loring, a passenger on the Short Line train which arrived in this city last evening, lost a purse while passing Seufert's Fishery It contained $100 in bills, besides papers of no value to any one but their owner She thinks the purse was stolen by some nimble fingered pickpocket.

Mrs. Loring, who is from St. Louis, is accompanied by her married daughter and granddaughter, and the loss of her purse would have greatly inconvenienced them had not the kind-hearted passengers taken up a collection of about $30 to help them along.

Upon arriving in this city Mrs. Loring repaired to the Merchant's hotel, where she will stay while in this city. Persons on the train suspected two young men of the robbery, and so informed Officer James Barry The latter immediately made a thorough investigation of the case, and came to the conclusion that the suspected parties were entirely innocent, and allowed them to depart on the train for the Sound, whither they were bound. Mrs Loring carried her purse in an outside pocket of her cloak, which was very careless of her

S. M'LEAN BENT ON SUICIDE.

He Makes His Second Attempt Last Night, but Is Balked.

A Large Dose of Chloral Hydrate Taken, but Two Able Physicians Relieve His Stomach of It

Samuel McLean courts death He has made two attempts at suicide but each time has been balked by physicians with their ever ready stomach pumps He has each time spent 50 cents for chloral hydrate but the money has been wasted as many times, as the drug was pumped out of him and thrown away by extravagant physicians. The would be suicide now lies on the stone floor of a cell in the city prison sleeping off the effects of his last dose taken with a view of producing everlasting sleep

At 9 15 o clock last night Officer Richard Collins while passing the International hotel, noticed a man all doubled up in one of the many chairs on the sidewalk. Supposing him to be intoxicated he endeavored to arouse him but to no avail He noticed that the man's breathing was very labored and came to the conclusion that he had taken poison He procured a cart and loading the man into it hauled him to the police station

On arriving at the city prison Drs Saylor and Panton were summoned and on their arrival found the man to be suffering from a heavy dose of chloral hydrate and the next thing to dead They immediately brought their stomach pumps into requisition and very soon had his stomach drained They rinsed it out and then gave the patient a strong hypodermic injection of strychnine to counteract the effects of the chloral The physicians labored with the man for about two hours during which time his life hung on a thread, but shortly after 11 o'clock the crisis was reached, and the would be suicide, until then unknown, showed signs of life

A down town saloonkeeper who dropped into the jail recognized the unconscious man as a Danish cook named Samuel McLean John Russell, another saloonkeeper who formerly kept a saloon in the lower end of the city was telephoned for and he too recognized and told the officers where the man had boarded An officer was sent to the place and returned a few minutes later with Mrs D M Tibbits After looking at the man she said to an OREGONIAN reporter

"Yes that is Sam McLean He boards with me, but did not come to my house this evening for dinner This is not his first attempt at suicide About a month since he took chloral and Dr Rand had to work with him all night to bring him to He would give no excuse for attempting to take his own life, but he frequently has the 'blues'"

"Do you know any reason why he should make a second attempt on his own life?" was asked

"I think I can partly account for it," Mrs Tibbits replied "About a week ago he received a letter from his father in Denmark, who is 70 years of age, which informed him that his father had failed in business and had lost nearly all he had. Ever since the receipt of this letter he has been very gloomy, and it may have caused him to attempt to take his life He has no relatives in this country He is a cook, and the last work he did was on the steamer Dolphin"

On being searched no money was found on McLean's person This fact also probably had something to do with his attempted suicide. At 3 o'clock this morning he was sleeping soundly and bids fair to recover A box containing considerable charcoal was found in one of McLean's pockets, but the druggist who sold the drug, knowing that he was violating the law put no label on it but simply wrote in pencil what it was If the police find out who he is it will go hard with him, as he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law

J B. MONTGOMERY'S NEW BOAT

She Will Be the Fastest Boat of Her Size on the Columbia or Its Tributaries

J B Montgomery's new steamer Typhoon which is being built in Smith's yard in South Portland, will be ready for launching in about three weeks She is to be run in connection with the Cyclone on the Albina route. The Typhoon will be ten feet longer than the Cyclone and two feet wider on the lower deck and will carry 150 passengers thirty more than the Cyclone

Mr Montgomery has made a contract with the Willamette Iron Works for a steel boiler for the boat It will be three eighths of an inch thick except around the firebox where the thickness will be five eighths of an inch It will have 200 tubes The Typhoon will have compound engines, which are being built by the Wells Engine Co of New York

The Typhoon will cost when completed $10 000 and will, Montgomery says be the fastest boat of her size on the Columbia or its tributaries. She will have a speed of sixteen miles an hour She will be ready to run by October 1, when there will be service every fifteen minutes between Portland and Albina.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AARON MEIER.

The Swift Winged Messenger Overtakes Him at the Breakfast Table—Apoplexy the Cause

Yesterday morning just after Aaron Meier of the firm of Meier & Frank had finished his breakfast at his residence, on the northeast corner of Eighth and Morrison streets and while engaged in conversation with his family he suddenly put his right hand up to his head and grew very pale. He was asked what ailed him but he gave no reply The members of the family supposed that he had merely fainted away and did all that is necessary in such cases As he could not be restored to consciousness Dr Curtis C Strong was hurriedly summoned but Mr Meier was beyond the reach of medical skill. When the doctor arrived Mr Meyer's pulse was very low and he breathed his last in less than fifteen minutes after he was removed from the breakfast table The direct cause of his sudden demise was apoplexy

Mr and Mrs Sigmund Frank the deceased's son in law and daughter had just returned from the seaside, and joined the family at the breakfast table

The deceased was a native of Germany about 77 years of age and besides his wife he leaves three children Mrs Frank and Abe and Julius Meier, to mourn his death

Mr Meier came to Portland in 1857 and has continuously been in business here for thirty two years He was always considered an able business man honorable in all of his business transactions He possessed many noble qualities of character, and was highly esteemed as a warm friend by a large circle of acquaintances

The deceased was a prominent member of the Congregation Beth Israel The funeral will take place from the family residence to morrow morning at 10 o'clock services to be conducted by the Rev Dr Jacob Bloch

FORESTS AND THE RAINFALL

PORTLAND Or, Aug 15.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

An interesting article in a recent number of THE OREGONIAN prompts me to say a few words on this subject of the influence of forests upon the rainfall of our country Your article, according to my recollection, implies that scientific men are in agreement as to the opinion that the fall of rain is sensibly and certainly affected by the forest covering more or less of a given area. My limited reading does not agree with this conclusion and I think there are quite two opinions on this point

Our own daily observations, it seems to me are enough to show us that there can be little or nothing in this theory

Last summer was one of most immoderate rains throughout England destroying the crops and flooding the country to an extent hardly ever known This is a summer of the very opposite character so much so that the English farmer is quite unhappy in having no cause to grumble against the perfect weather he has had through the whole season. Now what imaginable change in the forests of England could have made the variation in these two seasons?

In our own country the eastern part, as everybody knows has been subject to the most immoderate rains and floods, up almost to this very writing, while here in the West we have a season of drouth unprecedented in the present generation Have forests grown up in the East and disappeared in the West in any possible way to account for this wonderful difference in the rainfall?

Then again as to the theory that this dry season in our region is due in the most remote degree to the reduction of our forest area. This cannot possibly hold because from information given us by the old inhabitants and many persons of intelligent observation, there has been no such reduction I am well persuaded that the forests, the timber and the trees of Oregon to-day cover many thousands of acres more than they did thirty years ago! The hewing down of those almost boundless woods has yet hardly been begun, and it is only along their borders and fringes that any impression has been made while vast areas of foothills and valleys have been overgrown and entirely occupied by forests that nothing but the most persevering energy and industry will ever clear away

I have secured this impression of the present condition of our forests from the information of early residents here, and from my own observation and would very much like to know if this opinion is confirmed by other persons of wider observation and better information

If this be the case in regard to our forests, then scientific men and all others will have to give up the theory of their having any special influence upon the rainfall of the country B W M

STOOD UP IN THE PLAZA.

Barber Young Knocked Down by Thugs and Robbed of His Money.

He Offers a Reward of $50 for the Capture of the Men Who Assaulted Him—The Plaza Blocks Always Infested With Bummers

W H H Young, a barber at No 11 Jefferson street is out with a reward of $50 for the capture of the men who robbed him in the south plaza block.

The robbery occurred a week ago Thursday night but Mr Young did not report the affair to the police He kept quiet, expecting to meet the fellows and identifying them. This course availing nothing he decided to offer a reward

Mr Young did not lose much by keeping the police in the dark because they would never find the offenders unless they should surrender themselves

Mr Young was going through the plaza at 11 o'clock at night when he was attacked by two men One struck at him with a billy but he dodged the blow and turned to get out of the way of his assailants. As he stepped aside one of them tripped him and both pounced upon him and beat him and robbed him of $195

THE OREGONIAN has more than once called attention to the bums and thugs that infest the plaza. Not long since Chief Parrish instructed the day officer on the plaza beat to clean out the loafers since which time they have not been so thick during the day time Still any number of them can be seen sunning on the award every day

At night the plazas are a cool retreat for the vagrants They crowd the grand stands, fill the dilapidated benches and roll on the grass After dark it is not safe for a person to go through the plazas The trees that line the pathways on both sides are good hiding places and a man who is attacked there stands but little chance unless he is a good runner

HIS MARRIAGE A COMPLETE FAILURE

The Mother in Law of William La Grande Proves To Be Too Much for Him

William A La Grande, aged 22, so he claims and Mamie Akin aged 15, obtained a license to wed recently one D W Prince swearing that the blushing maiden was about 19 years of age They immediately repaired to the office of Justice of the Peace Tuttle and, presenting their license, were united in marriage in very short order

Everything went along smoothly for a time the newly married pair settling down to housekeeping but La Grande very soon found out that it was not for his mother in law Mrs Lizzie Akin his married life would be far pleasanter He alleges that his mother in law was very meddlesome, finally persuading his wife to leave him and return to her parental roof

The idea of losing his bride so soon after being united in marriage did not suit La Grande He went before Justice Tuttle and swore out a warrant against his objectionable mother in law charging her with violating her marriage vows also with kidnaping his wife Mamie Mrs Akin in turn swore out a warrant against La Grande charging him with subornation of perjury alleging that he persuaded D W Prince to swear that Miss Akin was over 18 years of age at the time the marriage license was procured

Yesterday Justice Tuttle's patience was sorely tried in hearing the case of La Grande The court room was crowded Mrs Akin had a host of witnesses on hand to swear that Mrs La Grande was not 18 [illegible] the fact and saved a great deal of time Mrs Akin and her husband with whom she has separated both testified that La Grande was objectionable to them as a son in law but that is about all It was not shown that he knew his wife's age and all the evidence introduced to the effect that he had persuaded Prince to swear that the girl was 19 years of age was only hearsay

Justice Tuttle held the woeful young benedict to answer before the grand jury but let him go on his own recognizance His wife went away with her mother Thus far La Grande's marriage has certainly been a failure He thinks the mothers in law should live in a little world all to themselves

NEARLY ROASTED ALIVE.

Two Persons Horribly Burned by Falling Into a "Live" Brick Kiln

At 7 o clock Thursday evening, a horrible accident occurred in the brick yards of Ellison & Leatherland, on the Taylor ferry road just above the Red house. Those who suffered by the accident were Walter Wols an apprentice aged seventeen years, and a Chinaman whose name could not be learned both employed in the yards The accident occurred as near as can be learned, as follows

At the hour named the apprentice and a Chinaman noticed that one of the arches in the southern end of one of the kilns had caved in This caused the upper part of the kiln to crack Wols and the Chinaman grabbed buckets of mud and climbed up to plaster over the cracks The southern bulkhead of the kiln had been made of sand instead of clay which was contrary to instructions, so it is claimed Through carelessness this had been allowed to become overheated and to make matters worse the bulkhead gave way as soon as the men stepped on it and they were precipitated into the sand which was almost at a white heat

The Chinaman scrambled out and escaped badly though not seriously burned Not so however with Wols He seemed to become stupefied by the fumes coming from the interior of the kiln and it was not until Mr Leatherland had made two attempts to reach him that he succeeded in getting out of the pit, although he made superhuman efforts to do so Just as Mr Leatherland rushed in to where the young man was being roasted alive the latter staggered past him

Young Wols was removed to the residence of Mr Leatherland, in Fulton Park, and yesterday Dr Flinn of East Portland, visited him and dressed his injuries. He was found to be horribly burned about the lower extremities and arms His chances for recovery are very small It is thought the Chinaman will recover, as his injuries are not so serious

Sale of Seats for the Mather Season—Last Performance of "A Parlor Match"—Etc

The sale of seats for Miss Mather's engagement of five nights and a Wednesday matinee, at the New Park theater next week commenced yesterday at Hoyt & Co's and was a great success As Miss Mather presents a different play each night and many theater goers being desirous of seeing her in her different impersonations the sale for the various performances is about equally divided

Last night was the farewell performance of "A Parlor Match" by Evans & Hoey at New Park theater There was a large audience Every body laughed until they were hoarse The company during the past week have done a great deal to drive away the blues and have been a sure and speedy death to dyspepsia All agree that "A Parlor Match" is one of the funniest of the funny plays now on the road To day the company will leave here for San Francisco on the afternoon express and will open at the California theater next Monday evening

Only "Standing Room," was the sign last night at Cordray's theater and Musee "East Lynne" has been the attraction during the week and has proved a drawing card This afternoon a popular matinee performance will be given for the express benefit of ladies and the little people New attractions are promised next week

A PLEA FOR THE SHADE TREES

Buildings Moved Through the Streets Break Limbs and Disfigure Them

The course of the old clap-trap building which was moved from the vicinity of Fifth and Washington streets to Third and Market where it was arrested by an injunction from the county court and sawed in twain is marked by some unsightly disfigurations of shade trees The building was so large that it extended nearly from curb to curb and many beautiful shade trees were greatly damaged On Market between Fourth and Fifth streets there is a row of trees that look as though they had come in contact with a cyclone

The limbs on the side towards the street have been broken off, sawed off, and wrenched off causing the trees to look unsymmetrical and decidedly lopsided The building was an old one that could hardly hold together and the damage to any one of the trees really amounts to more than the price of the house

Mrs. Dr Emma J Welty, seeing that the building headed towards First street where of necessity it would have to pass her shade trees, which included a magnificent weeping willow that she prizes as highly as her dwelling obtained an order from the court restraining the owners of the building from moving it any further The building was sawed through the middle and each section was then moved without any trouble and without menace to the trees along the street

Complaints of the ruthless desecration of shade trees have been frequently made and the general opinion expressed is that no more of it should be allowed Beautiful shade trees which are the greatest ornaments to any city should be protected.

IT WILL BE A MERRY WAR.

Governor Pennoyer, the Fish Commissioners and Taffe Preparing to Fight.

The Salmon Law Was Violated and the Governor is Going to Make Some One Pay for it—The Celilo Man Defiant.

There is likely to be a great deal of fun as soon as Governor Pennoyer begins prosecuting J H Taffe the Celilo salmon fisherman for catching salmon out of season for the benefit of the Spokane Falls sufferers

To a man perched on a tree this rolling up of sleeves and gritting of teeth portends a mighty conflict

The way it looks now it will be a battle between Taffe and the fish commission on one side and the governor of the great state of Oregon on the other Both parties are preparing for the fray In a dispatch published in THE OREGONIAN Reed and Campbell are quoted as saying that they will stand between the governor and Taffe if the former attempts to make trouble

Commissioner Reed who is president of the commission is at the St Charles and was questioned yesterday about the big row

COMMISSIONER REED EXPLAINS

"I gave Mr Taffe authority to go ahead and catch salmon for the Spokane sufferers" he said "I watched the catching and the shipping of the fish and when the work was done I saw that everything was closed down I knew of course that it is against the law to fish in August but I did not stop to think I knew that there were fish in the river and that the sufferers might as well have them as anybody It was all for charity

TAFFE TELLS HIS STORY

Mr Taffe was in the city yesterday and was seen by a reporter to whom he said that if Governor Pennoyer undertakes to prosecute him he will defend himself

"There is a personal animosity of several years standing, between Governor Pennoyer and myself" said he "It has grown out of an old grudge and is altogether imaginative on his part It is some of his crankism, and is very unjust to me

"Ever since he was elected governor he has tried to persecute me He seems to think the fish commissioners are standing in with me which is not the case They are simply doing their duty as men

CAN THE COMMISSIONERS SUSPEND THE LAW?

"In regard to the charge that I caught fish out of season this year I want to say that I fished according to the fish commissioners directions to a hair They instructed me to catch fish until 6 A M of the morning of Aug 1 and I did it

"Now I want to tell you about that Spokane Falls affair When I learned that the city had been destroyed I came to the conclusion that the fish in the river were not doing anybody any good so I sent a dispatch to Mayor Furth, of Spokane Falls saying that I could give the people of the afflicted city all the salmon they could consume if the governor would only permit me to catch them I supposed the mayor would ask Governor Pennoyer for the necessary authority, but he did not At any rate the fish commissioners happened along about that time and they gave me the authority and I went to work

TAFFE CENSURES THE GOVERNOR.

The following appeared in the last issue of The Dalles Times Mountaineer, over the signature of Mr Taffe

In THE OREGONIAN of the 12th, I see an article headed "Governor Pennoyer will prosecute Taffe that last year the governor caused the arrest of Taffe but the jury failed to convict him etc

Yes an honest jury did fail to convict Taffe on the perjured evidence procured by Pennoyer for two purposes the first of which was to get even on an old grudge of long standing and the other to divide the bloodmoney amongst those perjured villains would have been fined had it not been that all three of the fish commissioners were at Taffe's fishery on the day that Pennoyer's reliable witnesses swore that he (Taffe) was catching salmon

About the dispatch the governor mentioned of [illegible] from a man at The Dalles there is not a word of truth in it The Dalles has received a dispatch from some tramps who were put off a freight train at Celilo some time ago, and infested the place ever since until a few days ago when one of them either went or was brought to Portland by the governor for the purpose of inventing some new scheme to extort the long sought blood money out of Taffe

The mayor seems to be and says he is very very mad about the fishing law being abused by the fish commissioners He himself was the first to abuse the law when three years ago he allowed all the canneries to fish during the first week in August solely for the purpose of showing his brief authority

THE HILL SHARON SUIT

Judge Deady Wrote the Opinion in the Celebrated Breach of Promise Case

It may not be generally known that Judge Matthew P Deady wrote the opinion in the celebrated Hill Sharon breach of promise suit The case was tried before Judges Deady and Sawyer, and the decision adverse to Sarah Althea Hill Terry was delivered on Christmas day, 1885. Judge Terry interested himself in the case after it had been decided in the state circuit court He was Mrs. Hill's attorney and pending the trial in the Federal court he married her The alleged marriage contract between Mrs Hill and Senator Sharon was shown to be a forged document beyond any possibility of doubt

Judge Deady was to have gone to San Francisco in a short time to try another case against Judge Terry, but since the latter's death, he will only sit in judgment over the case of Mrs Terry There are two indictments hanging over her for resisting an officer in the discharge of his duties Judge Deady may be called upon to try these cases in a few weeks The Federal judges in San Francisco all being witnesses in the case could not occupy the bench

The Contract for the New Adams Street M. E. Church Awarded.

Improvements To Be Made on Twelfth Street—For the New Team—Resumption of Services—Sewerage Question.

Friday evening August 16th the contract for the new church edifice of the Adams street M E church was awarded to E J Sprague

The work is to be commenced immediately, and pushed vigorously to completion It is expected that the building will be ready for dedication not far from January 1, 1890 The edifice is to be nearly a copy of the new Albina M E. church There will be no basement however, except for the furnace There will be an annex about forty feet square in the rear of the church, composed of three rooms, for Sunday school purposes This suite of rooms will be seated with 250 chairs and will be connected with each other by sash sliding doors and with the main building by sash rising doors The auditorium of the church proper, will be seated with pews affording sittings, including the gallery for 500 persons This building finished and furnished will cost not less than $5000 The building entire with its regular sittings for 750 people will furnish East Portland what she has long needed an auditorium sufficiently large to provide for an East Portland meeting for any distinguished speakers that may come or for any other East Side union demonstration or meeting The completed building will cover one entire lot

This society was organized October 188[illegible] with eleven members and now numbers 1[illegible] and is growing steadily The new building will be a credit to East Portland and to Stephens addition in particular

STREET CONTRACTS

The street committee has awarded contracts on Twelfth street as follows

W H Merrick—200 lineal feet between D and C on the east side block 2[illegible] 200 lineal feet on east side between C and B block 2[illegible] 200 lineal feet on east side between B and A block 232

Seventh street—S M Kiernan & Son blocks 23 27 36, 31 30

A street—G A Wheeler blocks 83 and 84

The contract on Twelfth comprises an improvement from D to Holladay avenue and when finished will give a continuous improvement from Hawthorne avenue to Holladay avenue the longest and best improved street in East Portland An extensive bridge will have to be built across Sullivan's gulch by the Oregon Real Estate Company The work on the improvement will begin at once and pushed with all possible energy to completion

SEWERAGE QUESTION

Mr McMahan introduced into the council an ordinance providing for a commission to prepare a sewerage system for East Portland It also provides for an expenditure of $500 to defray the expenses incurred in securing scientific help on the subject The move is certainly in the right direction The health officers say they can do nothing or at least very little toward keeping the city clean and pure until sewerage is supplied It seems to be needed in Stephens addition even more than in other portions of the city The ground is low and in some places the waste water runs in to the street and forms an offensive pool The property holders are powerless to do anything, and should not be always condemned There is but one solution to the question and that is provided in the ordinance that has been passed

Mayor Stewart has already strongly expressed himself in plain terms in this matter both in his first communication to the council and since, and there is no question but that he will give the project all the encouragement in his power

CUTTING OUT THE DOOR.

Work was begun yesterday cutting a doorway through the brick wall of the city hall into the engine house An opening eight feet wide will be made and arched above After the men had been working some time a cracking sound from the wall above caused some alarm to the officers. A heavy beam was placed in such a way as to support the wall The walls are solid and secure only at one end of the building it is thought the foundation has been impaired by water

TAKEN SICK

Mrs George E Halsey who went with her family to the country to spend a couple of weeks in hopes of benefiting her health has been dangerously ill at the residence of J B Day in Clackamas county for the past week Her condition is now much improved but she will not be able to return home for some weeks

ESCAPED A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Obstructions Thoughtlessly Left on a Railroad Track—They Were Timely Discovered

Thursday evening the 6 o clock West Side Southern Pacific passenger train on coming into the city narrowly escaped meeting with an accident which would in all probability have proved very disastrous. The following particulars are furnished by the Evening Telegram

I M Stark, the tin roofer bought from Seid Back one of the cottages standing in front of S G Reed's residence on First street and was having it taken from the site to a lot in South Portland At 4 o clock in the afternoon the mover had got the house into Whitaker street on Second and when the men quit work to prevent teams from being injured they obstructed the street with the heavy timbers used as truckage for the roller to slide on These timbers for some unknown reason lay across the railroad track which crosses Second street diagonally at that point and extended on each side There were several of them and they were very heavy being about six inches thick and ten inches in width

When the evening passenger came along the engineer looking out, saw the obstruction just in time to stop his train less than ten feet from the timbers The train men then got out and after removing the obstruction the train proceeded into town The occurrence was witnessed by a number of parties Had the engineer not seen the obstruction until a few seconds later the engine and cars would have been thrown from the track, it is said without a doubt, and as the side towards the river is an abrupt incline the chances would have been great that some one would have been badly hurt if not killed.

MR HATCH'S STATEMENT

Mr Hatch who had charge of the removal of the house called at THE OREGONIAN office last evening and stated that when he left his work at 4 o clock Thursday evening the railroad track was perfectly clear When he went around yesterday morning, a lady living in the vicinity told him that shortly after he left the evening before a man drove up with a load of shingles and tore up three planks of the bridge and threw them across the railroad track The man also took several planks used in house moving and threw them on the track.
